Glory for California
Lindbergh Sees the Fords
Why Not Trust People?
The Atom Is Too Big

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

ANOTHER tribute to California girls and California climate. Helen Wills, all comers in England's tennis tourney and made herself champion by beating the great Spanish player, Senorita Alvarez, in two straight sets. Miss Wills should be satisfied, graduate and get married.

Life begins when he goes into business. A girl's life begins when she gets married.

LINDBERGH, in his hop from St. Louis to Ottawa stopped off at Detroit, had dinner with Henry and Edsel Ford at Mr. Lanphere's, then took up, 12 army planes accompanying him.

Lindy probably learned from the Fords what they are doing preparatory to building all metal plane to carry from 20 to 200 passengers and fuel enough to go to Paris and back without landing. Both were necessary, with plenty of wind engines and a machine shop on board.

Ford goes through with that job. He will cost about a million, he will render a great service to flying and this country. Some day Uncle Sam himself will emulate the airplane builders. Everyone is catching.

KERENSKY, who ran Russia for a little while, "sees the early fall of Bolshevism." Bolshevism saw his early fall because bolshevism had one great advantage. It had a program and, good or bad, a program is necessary, for Kemal Pasha in Turkey, Mussolini in Italy, as William Penn in Pennsylvania.

Roaring and howling about bolshevism is what Bolshevists call "capitalistic government" all over the world. Britain, France, Italy, Japan and America would indicate that those governments lack confidence in the judgment or loyalty of their dear people.

Bolshevik propaganda cannot have effect unless peoples can be won over to bolshevism and communism. Why not give the people a little credit for common sense?

Bolshevism in the long run may do good, by making conservative governments realize that their safety lies in making the average man prosperous.

There would be plenty for all if unequal ability would concentrate on giving the little man enough, instead of each getting for itself too much.

J. THOMPSON, Great Britain's physicist, having succeeded in proving the atom is a little solar system, with one or more protons or suns in the center and electrons or planets revolving around it, is not satisfied. Those electrons that revolve around central protons trillions of times in a second must in their turn be examined. "We must go beyond them for something more infinitesimal, to explain the phenomena of the atom," says Thompson.

The average man will say, "Go as far with the atom as you like. I have gone far enough."

THIS year's "big fight" will be the low priced automobile fight. General Motors, it is said, will produce a new car, at a new price. Competition will force some automobile companies into combinations. The country will continue to absorb the right cars at the right prices, faster than they are turned out. Two million young Americans now have plans for the purchase of a new car, and millions of older Americans who have no cars yet will get them.

THIS is the age of so many wonders we forget to notice them. Byrd and his friends flew over the Atlantic. Lindy in the water. Next day people on the Pacific coast, 6,000 miles away, received by radio, actual photographs of Byrd's airplane dragged up on the beach.

UNITED STATES JUDGE KNOX sentences two former prohibition agents, both negroes, to the Atlanta penitentiary for bribery and conspiracy and says from the bench:

"With so many speakeasies running now I cannot escape the conclusion that both prohibition and enforcement agents are linked with the illicit traffic in liquor."

There are more speakeasies than there ever were saloons in New York and in Chicago. Enforcement of prohibition is a farce.

MRS. DARLING, asking a divorce, says that when she was 22 years younger her husband begged her on his knees to marry him and help him stop drinking. She devoted 22 years of her life to that job, and now the doctor asks another young woman to help with the same old job.

A wise young woman will advise any doctor to help himself first, then come around again.

LINDBERGH'S plane, the Spirit of St. Louis, kept as a relic in the Smithsonian institution. Americans of a future generation would wonder at it, more than we do, gazing on it as we look at Columbus' caravel, wondering how any man dared cross the ocean in it.

NO FIREWORKS FATALITIES IN STATE, REPORT

Scores Are, Dead, However, Throughout Middle West After Double Holiday

43 TAKEN IN INDIANA

Fifteen Casualties in Pennsylvania, 11 in Chicago, Nine in California

Columbus, July 5—Ohio today was pridefully considering today the lowest holiday casualty list in the state's history.

Less than half a dozen persons were killed in automobile and drowning accidents, and there was not a death reported from the use of fireworks.

Grade crossings and automobile accidents claimed nearly 40 lives last Labor Day, the last general holiday on which the weather afforded comfortable motoring.

SCORES ARE DEAD IN MIDDLE WEST

Chicago, July 5—Scores are dead and hundreds injured in the midwest today as the result of fireworks, automobile, airplane and other accidents July 4.

In Chicago 10 persons were killed, one child was burned to death and 55 seriously injured by fireworks.

Three persons were drowned in Minnesota and four were fatal victims of automobile crashes.

Nine deaths, four of children, was the toll in California.

Forty three lives were lost in Indiana in automobile accidents, airplane crashes, fireworks explosions and drownings.

Ethel Donne, 21, a parachute jumper fell to her death at Indianapolis before thousands of spectators in an amusement park. The girl plunged into a tree when her parachute failed to open.

15 LOSE LIVES IN PENNSYLVANIA

Pittsburgh, July 5—Fireworks and automobile accidents combined to take a toll of 15 lives in Pennsylvania over the holiday, a survey today showed. In addition, 154 persons were injured in similar accidents.

Charles Little, 50, his wife and two small children were killed near here when a speeding express train hit their auto. Little's four other children, all under 12 years, were critically injured and may die.

COOLIDGE OFF TO SEE BRONCO BUSTERS RIDE

President To Get "Eye-Full" at Tri-State Round-Up; Champions Perform

Rapid City, S. D., July 5—Calvin Coolidge, from "way down east, prepared today to leave here at about noon for Bellefourche, S. D., where he will take in a little of the more spirited entertainment they furnish "way out west."

The Tri-State Round-up, which annually lures in all the finest riders of the surrounding ranges to compete for fame and good hard cash, was the attraction which is taking the executive away from his summer White House for the day. It will be Mr. Coolidge's first honest-to-goodness western rodeo and judging from the program he's going to witness plenty of action.

Horses from the hills which have never felt the touch of a saddle, and steers which have never seen the inside of a corral have been assembled to test the skill and dexterity of the best known cowboys and cowgirls in the west.

Especial interest in the round-up is being manifested by the presidential party because they have their entry in the show "Dakota Clyde" Jones, major domo of the state game lodge stables. Clyde, who held the bronc busting championship two years ago, entered the full three-day competition at Bellefourche by special permission and personal request of Mr. Coolidge.

CLUBBER WOMAN?

Feminine Fingerprints Found on Purse of Slain Girl

Oakland, Cal., July 5—A woman or man with soft, dainty hands clubbed pretty 15-year-old Mabel Mayer to death, police believed today following discovery of feminine fingerprints upon the green purse of the slain girl.

The battered body of the young music students was found by carpenters in a vacant lot. She had been beaten and gouged to death with pieces of scantling found nearby.

Five San Leandro boys, overheard discussing the murder, will be grilled by detectives today.

Like Fairy Tale

Antonio Vanna Razlog, 27, son of a Dalmatian countess and a former dry dock worker, has signed a contract in New York to sing in public concert at $1,000 a performance. He came to the United States four years ago as an immigrant. Recently, his singing was heard by a pair of opera managers, who immediately signed him up.

GRACE GIVES UP HOPE OF FLYING OVER PACIFIC

Final Effort Shows Faulty Rudder; Ship Crashes on Making Landing

Los Angeles, July 5—Richard Grace, Hollywood aviator, who crashed his plane in landing yesterday at Barking Sands, Kauai Island, Hawaii, after an unsuccessful take-off for his solo flight to California, will rebuild his plane in Honolulu and make another start within three weeks, his backer, Grant K. Dolge, announced today.

• • •

Honolulu, July 5—Hounded by hard luck, "Broken Neck" Dick Grace, movie stunt flier, today gave up his dream of being the first man to fly from Hawaii to California.

Grace and his party were expected to return to Honolulu from the Island of Kauai tmorrow.

Four times Grace bumped down his crude runway at "Barking Sands," on Kauai, on the start of a solitary, non-stop flight to California. Three times a tire blew out on the landing gear of his tiny monoplane.

The airplane got away on a beautiful takeoff yesterday, but after 40 minutes in the air a faulty rudder forced him to return. Landing on the edge of the flying field, Grace's plane skidded and crashed. One wing was crumpled and the fuselage badly twisted.

Misfortune has hovered over Grace's project from the start. A cracked propeller held him up at first. Then followed a spell of bad weather and strong, unfriendly winds. When the weather became normal, three tire blowouts on three separate attempts to take off were the next prank of a wayward fate.

Although heartbroken, Grace tried to put up a calm front.

"I did my best," he remarked, "that's all I can say."

Lieut. Estes B. Koger, manager of Grace's flight, collapsed, however, when the monoplane crashed. He took the failure of the flight more keenly, apparently, than Grace himself.

Although material has tentatively been ordered at the Pearl Harbor airport for repairing upon the plane, it was generally believed Grace and his party will sail for California tomorrow.

TWO DIE IN PLANE

Commercial Ship Crashes on Lougherty Island; Passengers Victims

Cincinnati, July 5—Two men were dead and another suffering from serious injuries today, as the result of the crash of a commercial airplane on Lougherty Island, near Rising Sun, Ind., yesterday afternoon. Harry Danbury 24, and Raymond Hodges, 30, both of Rising Sun, passengers, were killed, and Edward Roefling, Cleves, O., pilot, was being treated at Jewish Hospital here today. The plane was circling above a powerboat which had been participating in the annual Ohio River regatta, when the pilot turned too sharply and the crash followed.

COLUMBUS CELEBRATES ITS QUIETEST FOURTH

Columbus, July 5—Only one fatality marked the quietest July Fourth in years in Columbus. Ephraim K. Holcomb, a carpenter, was killed and three young women with him were injured when Holcomb's automobile turned over in a ditch near here and caught fire. No serious injuries from fireworks were reported. A minimum temperature of 52 broke all records in the history of the weather bureau for the national holiday.

FIVE PERSONS ARE INJURED IN ACCIDENTS HERE

Four Automobiles Figure in Crashes in Marion and Vicinity

George Brahn Sustains Crushed Foot While Unloading Car of Rails

Injury of five persons and the damage of four automobiles was the toll of accidents in Marion and vicinity over the week-end, Monday and today.

The injured listed today include: Webber Sullivan, 264 Fiesay; Mrs. Earl Dixon, 258 Fiesay; George Brahn, 30, of Delaware; Carl Blosser, 588 Silver-st, and Bert Beeley, Nevada.

George Brahn, a foreman of a C., D. & M. section gang, was injured when a heavy rail fell and crushed his right foot while working unloading the steel rails just south of Bellefontaine-ay at 11:30 o'clock this morning. He was rushed to the office of Dr. Harold K. Mouser in the C. E. Curtis & Co. ambulance where he received medical attention and later removed to his home in Delaware.

Sullivan and Mrs. Dixon were injured when the Ford Sedan driven by Mrs. Sullivan turned over into a ditch on the Kenney-pk. one and one-half miles west of Marion yesterday afternoon. Three stitches were required to close a wound sustained by Sullivan on his right leg. Mrs. Dixon sustained bruises and scratches while Mrs. Sullivan escaped injury.

Learning To Drive

Mrs. Sullivan was being taught to drive by her husband when the accident occurred. The car careened off the gravel road and crashed into three fence posts before turning over. The car was badly damaged.

Blosser and Beeley are in City Hospital today suffering from injuries sustained Sunday night. Beeley received a fractured skull when his car was hit on a road in Delaware County near Norton.

According to medical attendents of Blosser, who sustained a double fracture of the lower jaw, he received his injuries when he was thrown off the running board of an automobile on W. Center-st, Sunday night. Blosser's own story to hospital attendents disclosed that he lost his balance on the side of the car and was unable to catch himself before he hit the pavement. He also sustained a gash on his head and a cut over his left eye.

All occupants of the Studebaker roadster and the Ford touring car from Delaware which collided on the Prospect-pk. near the Socioto Power Station at 2 o'clock, Sunday morning, escaped injury.

The Studebaker crashed into the ditch and overturned and the Ford lost one of its wheels in the crash. After repairs the Ford was driven on but the Studebaker had to be towed into a local garage. None of the names of the occupants of the cars was learned. The Ford, however, was driven by a negro residing in Delaware, according to Sheriff James A. Deal who was notified by the negro of the accident.

DONAHEY SENDS BIDS FOR TRUSTEES' MEETING

Plans for Decentralizing State Library's Activities To Be Considered

Columbus, July 5—Gov. Vic Donahey today sent invitations to the heads of Ohio State University, Ohio University, Miami University, the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society of Bowling Green and Kent State Normal Colleges to attend the session at the state house Wednesday afternoon of the state library board of trustees when the governor expects to submit to the board for its consideration plans for decentralizing the activities of the library.

Due to the governor's veto of the legislative appropriation of $12,000 to defray expenses of the library during the coming 18-months fiscal period, the library was closed to the public July 1.

Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, Lima, president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs; Mary Downey, librarian, Denison University, and John Henry Newman, Columbus, former state librarian, also, were invited by Donahey to attend the meeting which is scheduled to start at 1:30 p. m.

Giant Business Bodies and Universal Five-Day Week To Revolutionize Industry

Henry Ford Predicts Tremendous Advances In Mechanics; Motor Magnate Confirmed Optimist About United States; Sees Nation as Steadily Progressive Country

Editor's Note—Following is the first of a series of five important interviews with Henry Ford by William K. Hutchinson, International News Service staff correspondent. Mr. Ford discussed the five-day week, the future of aviation, what his great fortune has meant to him, politics and business conditions of the future. The remaining installments will be carried daily throughout the week.

DETROIT, July 5—Tremendous advances in the mechanical end of American industry gradually will revolutionize the business world, with the creation of giant business corporations and the universal adoption of the five-day week as outstanding changes.

HENRY FORD

This is Henry Ford's view of America's industrial future.

The richest man in America is a confirmed optimist about the United States. He believes America is a steadily progressive nation. He feels the country will develop year after year in trade, commerce, industry, science and the arts. Its possibilities are unlimited he says, if American business men will lead the way.

"Do It Well"

The auto king was interviewed in his office at Dearborn, in the midst of a 10,000-acre tract of factories. He wore a modest gray business sack suit and looked anything but the greatest industrial genius of this or any other age. He spoke in low soft tones.

Throughout the interview, Ford stressed the necessity for business men and workers doing their full duty to the best of their ability.

His creed for all business—and it will apply as well to over human activity—was summed up thus: "The best slogan for a successful business is: Do the ordinary thing extraordinarily well."

The world is living in a mechanical age, in which man's conquest of the air is just getting under way, Ford said, and the mechanical wonders have only begun.

Many Changes Coming

"There are many changes coming in our system of business and they are all for the better," said Ford. "I consider the United States as an extract of all the world, and a result, we have more pioneer spirit than any other country. There is lots of work waiting to be done if the leaders will find ways of doing it. And they will, for this is a nation that succeeds."

Business conditions are going through a change at the present moment, Ford said in commenting on the present state of prosperity.

"We are having a little breathing spell," was his comment.

"Will the Mississippi flood damages have any effect on the nation's prosperity next winter?" he was asked.

"No effect at all" the auto king replied. "Only a small part of the commercial south was affected by the floods. The great gain is that the

FRANCE WOULD PRESENT LEGION HONOR TO BYRD

First Will Ask Washington To Allow Flier to Accept Decoration

Paris, July 5—The French Cabinet today decided to grant Commander Richard E. Byrd of the "America" the Legion of Honor but first decided to ask Washington to give Byrd permission to accept the honor.

"Any Americans who may doubt France's affection for the United States need only make a non-stop flight from New York to France."

This was the statement of Commander Byrd in replying today to a speech of welcome by Colonel Polimachetti at a reception given in honor of the American aviators by the thirty-fourth aviation regiment of France at Le Bourget Flying Field.

Byrd, the pilot of his plane, Bert Acosta, and the relief pilot, Bernt Balchen, were guests of honor. G. O. Noville, the other member of the crew, remained at his quarters in the Continental Hotel. Also among those present was Clarence Chamberlain, famous New York-to-Germany flier.

FOUR ARE KILLED

Running Gun Battle Takes Place Near Smolensk; Five Injured

Moscow, July 5—Four persons were killed and five wounded in a running gun battle today between Monarchist conspirators headed by a woman, M. V. Zacharchemko, and a police army detachment.

Three monarchists, including Madame Zacharchemko, and one army policeman were slain.

Armed peasants assisted in the rounding up of the monarchist band. Five of the pursuers, including a soldier, were injured.

Madame Zacharchemko and two assistants came from Finland and attempted to dynamite the army police building in Moscow June 3. On that occasion she fled to Smolensk.

THIRD OF U. S. WAR DEBT SOON TO BE RETIRED

Reduction in Outstanding Obligations of $8,000,000,000 Is Reported

Washington, July 5—By the end of 1927 substantially one-third of America's war debt, which in August, 1919, stood at over $26,500,000,000, will have been retired, it was learned at the treasury today.

The eight years of financial maneuvering since the debt stood at its maximum will have resulted in a retirement of about $8,000,000,000 in outstanding obligations, representing an interest saving of $320,000,000 annually.

While the treasury had abandoned its original intention of wiping out the debt in 25 years, should surplus revenues continue as since the war, with average retirements of $1,000,000,000 annually, this objective will be accomplished.

Alone of the allied nations which participated in the World War the United States has succeeded in making an appreciable dent in the colossal war deficit. Other countries have barely been able to balance their budgets and "break even."

Debt retirement is viewed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as the most effective step toward permanent tax reduction. With 80 per cent of the debt retired, it is felt that the maximum income taxes may be fixed at 10 per cent, less than half the present figure. Experts believe that within 20 years it will be possible to cut taxes to that percentage.

Wellington, July 5—Kenneth Hines, 29, and his wife, Gladys, 28, are dead today following a crossing crash near midnight Monday, when their auto was struck by a fast Big Four train at the Main-st crossing here.

Hines was a Wellington garageman.

ARREST MAN AS ONE OF GALION BANK BANDITS

Harry Gellock, 30, Denies Knowledge of $65,000 Hold-Up; To Face Mayor

(Special to The Star)

Galion, July 5—Harry Gellock, 30, was under arrest here charged with being one of five men who last week robbed the Commercial Savings Bank of $15,000 in cash and $50,000 in negotiable bonds. He was to be arraigned before Mayor H. H. Hartman late this afternoon.

Gellock was placed under arrest at Toledo Monday at the request of local authorities and was brought to this city by Chief Frank Cook and Captain George Rudy of the Galion Police Department.

Expect More Arrests

While officials have declined to discuss incidents leading up to Gellock's arrest, it is understood that he was taken into custody as the result of an investigation being conducted by bankers' association representatives in the case. It has been rumored here that additional arrests will be made this week.

E. G. Beall, cashier and C. W. Treeht, assistant cashier, who were made to lie face down on the floor during the holdup last Tuesday stated today that they had seen Gellock at the local jail. They did not indicate whether or not identification was possible.

Gellock is reported to have denied any knowledge of the bank holdup here last week and is staunchly maintaining his innocence.

NEGRO RUNS AMUCK

One Woman Dead, Policeman Dying, Four Wounded in Cincinnati

Cincinnati, July 5—One negress is dead, a policeman is reported dying, and another policeman and three negroes are suffering from bullet wounds as the result of a battle in the negro district of west end here last night when an unidentified negro, crazed with drink, ran amuck with a shotgun and an automatic pistol.

The negro was finally subdued, and is in General Hospital with two bullet wounds through his body, and a fractured skull, after he had shot and probably wounded Policeman John Franken, 48, and seriously wounded Policeman Sherman Yearon, 24, who were called to the scene when the negro had started "shooting up" the district.

Both Die in 15 Feet of Water, After One Steps from Ledge

Separate funeral services were held this afternoon at Marseilles and Mt. Victory M. E. Churches for Marvin Jones, 21, and Earl Key, 19, Marion youths who drowned at Indian Lake Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Jones and Key met their deaths in 15 feet of water off The Wedge, one-half mile east of Russell's Point, while swimming. The wedge is not a swimming beach.

With three other Marion youths, Dale Gaster, Key's cousin, later N. Main-st, Kenneth Krisher, 641 Oak-st, and Leroy Dawson, 301 Belmont-st, Jones and Key had rented a cottage at Cottonwood, an Indian Lake resort, for a holiday outing.

Set Out in Rowboat

Attired in bathing suits, the two set out together in a rowboat Sunday morning. They entered the water, members of the party stated today, at a shallow depth. After a reassuring shout to Gaster and Krisher, who were at the boat landing, Key waded through the water a short distance, stepped into a deep channel and went down. Jones lost his life in a valiant effort to save Key, who was not an expert swimmer.

Seven persons engaged in the work of recovering the bodies. Stanley Pike, of Lima, who is credited with saving five lives, brought them to the surface. Resuitation attempts were made for an hour and one-half with a pulmotor by State Patrolman Clay E. Harmon.

Lived Here Two Years

Marvin Jones was the son of Charles Jones of Shelby, but had resided with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Woodard, of near Marseilles, since a lad of three years, following his mother's death. Since graduating from Harding High School last spring, he had been employed as attendant at the Standard Oil Co. filling station, S. State-st. The boy was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Moore, near Marseilles, late Sunday. Mrs. Moore is an adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodard. Services were held from the Marseilles M. E. church this afternoon at two o'clock with Rev. Koontz, of Marseilles, officiating. Burial was made in Dunkirk Cemetery.

Surviving in the immediate family are the father, Charles Jones, of Shelby, two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Pugh, of Ada, and Mrs. Grace Althouser, of Benton, and three brothers, Bryan Jones, of Dunkirk, and Clay and Paul of Shelby.

BANDIT IS SLAIN

Attempts to Hold Up Deputy Sheriffs on Road Near Findlay

Findlay, July 5—Austin Williamson, 24, oil pumper and alleged auto bandit, is dead here today, the victim of a deputy sheriff who was quicker on the draw, according to the coroner's report following an inquest held Monday.

Williamson, according to county records, and an alleged confession by his wife and companion, was fatally shot Saturday night when he attempted to rob Deputy Sheriffs H. B. Groves and O. E. Wilford, who with their wives, parked on a road where an auto bandit had operated for several months.

Williamson mistook the deputies' car for a petting party, his wife told the deputies, they reported. When Groves handed an empty pocketbook to Williamson, who failed to disarm him, Groves shot. Williamson died several hours later.

OHIO REFORMATORY NINE PLAYS DESPITE PROTEST

Mansfield, July 5—The Reformatory baseball team today has one more victory to its credit, following the defeat of the Shiloh nine Monday. The game was played despite the protest of Charles Ritchie to Governor Donahey last week, after a vote was taken Sunday in the Shiloh Church, when a unanimous vote for the game resulted.

The game had been postponed by reformatory officials, but was played as originally scheduled when some of the church vote pointed to unfairness.

ABANDON EFFORTS TO POSTPONE C.,D.&M. CASE

Flight Over Crossing Will Probably Come Up for Hearing on July 12

Plans for postponing hearing on the suit of the Marion county commissioners against the C. D. & M. Electric Co., in which the commissioners are endeavoring to establish a crossing for opening the Water Valley road in the Prospect-Marion area of the city, have been abandoned and the case will probably come up for consideration July 12.

This was indicated today by Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiseman, who stated that the commissioners were unwilling to agree to further delay in the proceedings. A request for postponement was made last week by W. P. Mohler, attorney for the C. D. & M., who is planning a trip to Texas and other points in the south and expected to be out of the city on the date set for the hearing.

Pending Year

Controversy over the crossing has been pending for more than a year. The county plans to open the Water Valley road to connect up with the Prospect road in order to establish an entrance into the west section of the city for traffic from Prospect, Marseilles and other points to the northwest.

The Water Valley road, an extension of Delaware, now has its west terminus at the C. D. & M. railroad tracks. The C. D. & M. objects to having another grade crossing established over its tracks.

Regardless of what the outcome of the present case may be in the common pleas court the case is expected to go to the higher courts with prospects of a final decision not being obtained for at least another year.

Simply Amazing!

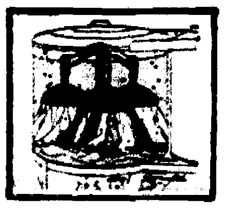
..the new and unusual ways this washer saves work...

Women say that the New Easy is five years ahead of its time, so unique are the time- and labor-saving features that it offers

No wringer—can't catch your fingers
No broken buttons—less sewing
No deep wrinkles—easier ironing
No pails of water to empty—saves your back
Washes by the world-famous Easy Vacuum Cup System
Dampdries by means of marvelous new-type drying tub
Empties water by ingenious new system
Great speed—cuts the job in half by washing and drying at the same time
Capacity extra-large, and adjustable

Heaviest dirty pieces washed clean; finest dainty things washed safely
Drying tub leaves clothes evenly damp
You still hang pieces in sun and air
Washes and dries pillows—without removing the feathers
Special gas heater keeps water hot; also handy for cold-pack canning
Automatic starting and stopping switch—prevents blowing fuses
No oiling worry—automatically done
No old-fashioned belt
Runs as easily, smoothly and quietly as a fine motor car

The Easy's Vacuum Cups move up and down, gently flushing soap and water through the fabric by air pressure.



Here the cups are gently drawing the soap and water back through the fabric by suction.

Here's how the Easy empties the water for you, electrically, without your using a bucket to lift or carry a single drop.

Here you can see how the Easy gets in speed. One tub for washing, another for drying, and both work at once.

It's simple to oil the Easy. Put a teaspoonful of oil in this reservoir and it runs to the working parts.

You can even wash and dry pillows in the New Easy, without removing the feathers.

The New Easy has two tubs. One washes the clothes, the other dampdries, and they both work at once. Each tub holds the equal of eight double sheets. For homes without electricity the Easy is furnished with a simple gasoline motor.

WASHING HINTS

Water Softening

No washing can be efficiently done unless the soap can do its work properly. Soap cannot make a good suds in hard water. Therefore, if the water you use is hard, you must soften it. Laundry soda is an efficient agent in softening water for laundry work. It should be well dissolved and somebody be used to combine it with the right amount of soap.

Ordinary sal soda crystals may be used. Always dissolve them first in hot water—1 lb. of crystals to 1 gallon water. One-half cupful of this solution should be sufficient for one tubful of water in the EASY. An alternative is a prepared "modified soda," which is a combination of washing soda and bicarbonate of soda. This should be dissolved in hot water.

ILLNESS PREVENTS MAN FROM ASSUMING DUTIES

Clifford Swisher, Meeker, Suffers Relapse Following Recent Operation

Illness prevented Clifford Swisher, of Meeker, from starting work today as deputy county sealer of weights and measures, a position to which he was appointed recently by County Auditor Earl D. Thomas. J. T. Mason, who has served as sealer during the last 10 years, will continue filling the position until Swisher is able to take over his duties.

Swisher underwent an operation recently and had apparently recovered ... completely when he suffered a relapse last week. He is now under the care of a physician at his home in Meeker.

Auditor Thomas stated today that it will probably be at least a week before Swisher is able to report for duty. Prior to accepting appointment as sealer, which was to be effective today, Swisher was employed as clerk at the Big Four freight office here.

SENATOR FESS TO TALK BEFORE ENDEAVORERS

Kansas City Gets 1928 Convention of International Society

Cleveland, July 5—Class conferences were to occupy the major portion of today's morning program of the 1927 convention of the International Christian Endeavor Society here.

Rev. George N. Luccock, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church at Wooster, Ohio, was to speak at the 1 o'clock luncheon, to be followed by denominational conferences starting at 2:30 o'clock.

U. S. Sen. Simeon D. Fess of Ohio was scheduled to address the convention in public hall at 9:10 o'clock tonight.

The convention parade yesterday was declared the best in the society's history by Dr. Daniel W. Poling, president. The endeavorers last night went on record for the 8 convention that prohibition is a sealed issue in American politics and pledged themselves to fight "wet" candidates.

Kansas City, Mo., has been awarded the 1929 convention of the society.

The Christian Endeavor World, official organ of the Christian Endeavor movement, which has been published under private ownership for over 40 years, was given to the international society yesterday by Dr. Amos R. CHINESE LAUNDRYMAN PLACED UNDER ARREST

Joe Yee, W. Center-st, Charged with Ignoring Order To Clean Up

Refusal to comply with orders of the city health department and clean up the yard at the rear of his place of business, resulted in the arrest yesterday afternoon of Joe Lee, W. Center-st Chinese laundry owner, by Sanitary Commissioner Tobin.

According to the sanitary commissioner, Yee had ignored three requests of the department to clean up his yard and yesterday when he refused to pay 75 cents to have the rubbish hauled away after the commissioner had gone to the extent of providing some one to do the work, patience ceased to be a virtue with the commissioner, and he placed the Chinaman under arrest. He was held at police headquarters for his hearing in municipal court today.

Camp John Owens Now One of Best Scout Recreational Centers In Entire State

Permanent Equipment Added Until 75 Boys Can Be Accommodated; Two Ball Diamonds and Bathing Pool Provided; Business Men Help

BY H. WARD EWALT
Associate Camp Director

On Aug. 4, 1926 the Boy Scout Camp of the Harding Area became a reality when the first boys arrived on the camping site, located on the Owens Farm, four miles south of town. At that time the only permanent equipment was the headquarters lodge, the dining hall, and the motorized pump that discharges 80,000 gallons of water from a drive well. The boys lived in tents, grouped about the campfire nightly after the arrival of Mr. C. A. Owens was present with Scout Executive Brown as the boys answered the call for assembly. As he watched the boys line up to listen to Mr. Brown and said, "Here is an important training that will be a large factor in the future welfare of Marion."

With this in mind, and with the firm conviction that Camp John A. Owens has a very definite place in the character building of modern youth, and a real contribution to the welfare of the entire state, many boys and men spent time and money in making the camp what it is today. Permanent equipment has been added until 75 boys can be accommodated. A fully equipped shop has been built, a Council ring has been constructed, the swimming pool dredged, the two baseball diamonds and a parade grounds have been laid out.

Carefully Planned

Not only has the camp been carefully planned from the viewpoint of equipment, but great care has been exercised in arranging the program. Discipline is enforced, but it is not the rigid, inflexible dogma of the regular army, but rather it is the kind of training that will help the boy to carry out the ordinary tasks and routine of the day just a little bit better than he has been able to do. Neatness both personal and in the lodge is demanded as each day an inspection is held in which first, second and third standings are awarded honors.

Because Walter C. Brown, the camp director is a firm believer that a boy or man is no better than he is when he plays there are plenty of good, wholesome games on the daily program, which are under the direction of a capable member of the staff who plays with the boys, or serves as an arbitrator as the case may demand.

Some one has said that an educated man is one who can use his hands, implying that a man must be able to use his head or be couldn't use his hands effectively. Working on this principle the boys are instructed in the making of useful things in leather and in wood.

Physical Checks Made

Realizing that the enjoyment of every camper depends on his getting the best start and when camp is opened by Dr. E. L. Black the camp leader and a constant check is kept on their general health conditions. To keep the fellows in the "pink of condition" 30 minutes of carefully selected exercises begin each days for. The camp is charged with the idea of keeping strong bodies.

The boys find room for self expression through the camp paper "Hog Wash" which is edited and printed in Camp. At the evening campfires the various lodge groups work and present their for the entertainment of the entire camp.

Scouts learn to be of great service in times of emergency because of their training in life saving, and first aid. They learn to signal, give first aid to animals, cooking and a thousand other useful things, but above all else they learn to live in harmony with other fellows.

Camp Owens offers more opportunities to live up to the Scout Laws than can possible be found in the urban districts. In short camp is the place where a Scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

$191,000 INSURANCE IS WRITTEN BY LEGION

Three Times Amount Post Officials Had Anticipated When Office Was Opened

Reed McCormick Post, No. 162, of the American Legion, wrote $191,000 insurance on government contract of World War veterans at the insurance headquarters opened up late Saturday night, the total for the opening applications, L. Ben Jones, post commander, stated today.

This was approximately three times the amount that the Legion officers had anticipated in establishing the service, Jones says. The insurance written by the Legion representatives was based on applications from approximately 25 ex-service men. In addition, 10 applications were received from World War veterans who had never applied for adjusted compensation.

Policies included in the $191,000 are for reinstatement or conversion of the original war service insurance. All insurance for which reinstatement applications were not filed will lapse as a result of the government ruling.

Seven Forms

War veterans were given the privilege of reinstating all or a part of their original insurance and converting it into one of seven forms of standard policies.

The Legion insurance headquarters, located in the E. Center st. room formerly occupied by the Western Union, was operated without charge to war veterans. It was opened June 10.

Insurance written at the headquarters represents only a small part of the total to be held by World War veterans living in the city. The majority applied for reinstatements or conversions prior to opening of the headquarters.

ONE OF FIVE BALLOONS IN RACE SIGHTED HERE

One of the balloons entered in the third annual Detroit News trophy race, which started in Detroit yesterday afternoon, was sighted over Marion early this morning and was visible here for approximately an hour.

Although the balloon was aloft at a great distance persons viewing it with field glasses in this section were able to establish identification indicating that it was the entry known as Detroit No. 3, piloted by A. G. Schlosser and E. J. Hill, both of Detroit.

It was first sighted north of the city shortly before 7 o'clock and drifted southeast across the city, disappearing from view about 8 o'clock.

There are five entries in the race, two from Akron and three from Detroit.

First prize is to be awarded the balloon traveling the greatest distance from the Detroit airport. Actual mileage will not be counted, distance being measured by a straight line from the starting point.

J. W. JACOBY ATTENDING LICENSE BOARD MEET

Marion Man Goes to Columbus To Confer on Program of Activities

J. W. Jacoby, local attorney and realtor recently appointed as one of the three members of the board of examiners which is to have charge of the new state real estate license bureau, went to Columbus today to attend the first formal session of the board. Appointment of the examining board, announced several weeks ago by Governor Donahey, became effective July 1.

The board will be in session three days this week, perfecting its organization and planning its schedule of operations. Jacoby is slated to be president, this having been agreed upon at a conference held with State Director of Commerce Locher last week. Locher is the chief administrative officer of the license bureau.

All real estate dealers in the state doing business on a commission basis will be required to obtain licenses. It is estimated that there are approximately 15,000 now in business who must obtain licenses. Questionnaires are to be mailed to all on this list, which includes about 90 dealers in the city of Marion.

ENGLAND DOLES $250,000,000 TO UNEMPLOYED

Out-of-Work Insurance Is Seen as Growing Evil by Ministry of Labor

London, July 5—The alarming manner in which the system of providing unemployment insurance for persons out-of-work—commonly known as "the dole" in England—is seeping into the national life of Great Britain is reflected in the annual returns of the Ministry of Labor, which reveal that $250,000,000 was paid out in this way during 1926.

This figure is $25,000,000 more than the sum disbursed in 1925, and the increase is attributed to the trade depression due to the general strike and its aftermath.

Effect of Strike

According to the Ministry's official return, the average number of persons given relief was about 1,046,000 weekly, and the average payment per head was $3.50-$4.00.

In the earlier part of 1926, the year under review, unemployment fell stead ily week by week, says the return. Then came the tragic general strike, and the unemployment figure jumped up to 1,-726,916, "exclusive of persons who ceased wor on account of the general strike and the coal dispute. It continued to rise up to the first week of July, when it was 1,645,000. Thereafter it dropped slightly, but at the end of the third week in November the figure was still well over 1,500,000 and even at the end of the year it was 1,351,000."

The effect of the increase of disbursements to unemployed was to send up the debt of the fund established for the purpose of providing benefits from $35,-000,000 to $110,000,000.

Revulsion of Feeling

The publication of these figures will likely cause another revulsion of national feeling against the payment of money to unemployed it being charged that many persons receiving benefits do not attempt to look for work while they can obtain money for nothing. In some districts of London, a man with a wife and four children can receive as much as $20 weekly while he is out of work in unemployment benefits and local assistance.

One suggestion is that the unemployed persons should be compelled to do State work, such as felling trees and maintaining roads, or show that they are willing to work before they can obtain benefits. Whatever happens, there is little doubt that the whole system will be tightened up.

GERMAN PLANE PROMISES NEW STUNTS IN AIR

Passngers Changing in Machines Far Up Seen as Possibility

Berlin, July 5—Passengers changing planes in mid-air, pilots relieving each other at an altitude of 1,000 feet, mail planes loading sacks of post far up above the landing field—these are some of the prospects which will become realities if the airplane invented by Engelbert Zaschka, German master engineer, fulfills the promise of its first trials.

His plane, the first helicopter which ever worked so successfully in miniature, not only rises and descends vertically, but it is able to remain stationary at any height.

German airplane experts assert that such a flight as that of Captain Charles Lindbergh's from New York to Paris would not even be a feat for Zaschka's plane when it was perfected. Due to its stability in the air, the Zaschka helicopter could take on fuel from other helicopters stationed at intervals along the route.

For World Flight

It is predicted that it will be with one of these machines that the next great "stunt" of aviation—namely a non-stop flight around the world, will be accomplished.

In the Zaschka plane the pilot will be able to rise from any landing station large enough to accommodate the plane, and to descend upon an equally small space. No landing fields with longer stretches of smooth ground for the takeoff of the ordinary airplane will be necessary. For the first time it will be possible to realize the dream of airplanes landing on the roofs of houses.

Herr Zaschka is fully aware that the perfection of his invention will be the greatest forward step in aviation since the Wright brothers made their historical hop. As he pointed out, the danger of flying would immediately be decreased by at least eighty per cent, since four fifths of the accidents in flying occur either in the takeoff or in landing. Equipment of his helicopter with a large parachute would make it virtually 100 per cent safe, enabling it to land unharmed even if the wings were to collapse.

The principle of Zaschka's machine is the familiar one of a four bladed vertical propeller taking the place of wings. The fuselage of the machine is similar to that of the ordinary airplane.

Horizontal Propeller

A horizontal propeller drives it forward. Zaschka's improvement on previous attempts of the kind consists in the application of an apparatus looking like the governor on a steam engine, which automatically maintains the plane in perfect balance and at the same time stores up energy for rotating the vertical propeller after the motor stops. It is through the use of this governor that the plane is brought to an easy, shockless landing.

A motor giving thirty to forty horsepower is installed in Zaschka's present experimental machine. It is so delicately adjusted that he has been able to keep the plane at a height of several feet above the ground, with no movement either up or down.

According to Zaschka's calculations his plane will be more economical of fuel than the ordinary airplane. Although for the present it is much slower than the ordinary airplane, he believes he will be able to make changes which will enable his helicopter to surpass the speed of the old types.

Second Hand Bootleg Cars Bring Cash For Uncle Sam

ALBANY, N. Y., July 5—Here's a tale that comes from the bootleg trail up around Malone, N. Y., and they say its true.

Every now and then the government auctions offer rum chariots that have been seized along the booze trail that runs into New York State from Canada.

This story has to do with a recent sale of such a car and one of two years ago.

At a recent sale a well dressed man, carrying a cane, was observed inspecting the various automobiles which were about to be placed on the auction block. He did not give much attention to the motor as usually the case when one buys a second hand car, but he did give a great deal of attention to the bodies of the machines.

Like a doctor tapping a man's chest for signs of disease, this man covered the entire body of each car with gentle taps. Then he told this story:

Two years ago he bought one of the seized rum cars for $235. It was in fine condition and for more than a year he drove about the state.

"Why we used to roll home early in the morning in that old bout and sing "How Dry I Am," said the prospective purchased. Then came the day when he decided to overhaul the old machine and make it into a milk truck.

Shades of John Barleycorn!

In a secret compartment of the body of the machine he made a discovery, and such a discovery it was that he nearly fainted, according to his own story. He said he could hardly believe his eyes when from the secret compartment he hauled out a case of Scotch whiskey and a case of assorted liquors.

But just at that time this man happened to have all of the liquor he wanted and he sold the two cases for $245, exactly $10 more than he gave for the car.

Ten minutes after the tale had been circulated through the crowd every car was sold.

STUDIES FORESTRY

German Baron To Take Red Oak and Fir to Germany

New Haven Conn., July 5—Baron Frederic H. von Maltzan, nephew of the German Ambassador, Baron Ago von Maltzan, came here to start on a motor tour of the United States. The purpose of the tour is to study American forestry.

For several months the young Baron has been doing research work in forestry at Yale University here and at Cornell University, Ithica, N. Y. It is now his purpose to round out his research by spending several months visiting the principal timber areas of this country and getting firsthand knowledge of various types of American timber and methods of forest propogation, conservation and utilization.

Accompanying Baron Maltzan will be Richard Schonland, of South Africa, who is in this country on a similar purpose. They will go West through the timber belts bordering the great lakes; thence through the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

Baron Maltzan plans to introduce red oak and douglas fir into Germany.

CLEVELAND ASKS FOR BOTH PARTY 1928 SESSIONS

Committees at Work To Secure Democratic and Republican Conventions

Cleveland, July 5—This city wants one, or both of the big political conventions, and nothing is being left undone toward that end.

Local committees have been selected by leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties, respectively, to formulate plans for collecting necessary funds and do other work necessary before a formal invitation can be presented to the national committee which will decide where its party convention will be held.

Send Questionnaires

Response to questionnaires sent to members of the G. O. P. national committee, by Carmi A. Thompson, Republican state chairman, indicate that Cleveland is acceptable to the majority of the committee but most of those interrogated declined to finally commit themselves as to their actual vote when the question of selecting the convention site arises.

Unless a decision is reached in the national committee to hold the Republican convention in the far west, the Cleveland committee feels that this city has better than an even chance to land the meeting.

Waiting for Butler

William R. Butler, of Boston, Republican national chairman, is scheduled to visit Cleveland in the very near future and local party leaders are hoping to get from him a line on the city's chances for the convention.

Minneapolis and Detroit are also in the limelight for the G. O. P. convince. A Democratic committee recently held a state meeting here at which plans were made toward bringing the Democratic convention here in 1928. The "demmies" expressed the opinion that the chances to land the Democratic convention looked more favorable than the Republican."

HERE'S MORE ABOUT FORD INTERVIEW STARTS ON PAGE 1

country is at last awake to the job of flood control."

The interview turned on the subject of business conditions in the future.

"Are great consolidations of business enterprises the future of American business?"

"Yes," said Ford. "Business will group into large and larger companies. It means more minds to run the business and run it well."

"From your own experience, are these great corporations easy to handle?"

Drift to Labor

"Yes, easier to handle even than the small ones," Ford declared. He then explained his answer by adding: "The fellow at the peanut stand has most trouble than the man running a big industry. The peanut vendor is under pressure every moment. He has all the responsibilities. He has to do everything himself. The result is his tasks are only half done.

This subject of giant corporations struck a spark in the man, who heads the world's greatest corporation. His own companies had cash resources a few months ago totaling about $550,-000,000.

"Twenty-five years ago," Ford continued, "you could take one idea and carry it along very well by yourself. Now the people are better posted generally and the competition is greater. We have more and better minds in industry. The individual expects to do the extraordinary thing, if he is to be successful, while in large corporations, the purpose is to do the ordinary thing extraordinary well."

The talk drifted to labor conditions.

Five-Day Week Certain

"Is the five-day-week a success in your business?" he was asked.

"Certainly," Ford retorted, "and it's here to stay.

"Will it spread eventually to industry generally?"

"Oh, yes," the auto king predicted. That is one of the changes coming."

Ford, while sometimes reported as a foe of organized labor, declared he had no antipathy for organizations of working men.

"Do you believe men have a right to organize?" he was asked.

"It depends entirely on what they organize for," said Ford. "I don't care how much they organize if they don't interfere with business."

The five-day-week policy, inaugurated in the Ford plants a year ago, caught the auto king's mind again.

Boon to Business

"I'm sure the five-day-week will be a success everywhere," he said. "It is coming generally with the expansion of automatic machinery. It will give the people more chance to use up what they produce. If they spend all their time making things, they have time only to work, eat and sleep and have no time to use the mechanical productions. The five-day week means more time for play and pleasure and the use of mechanical products.

"It will be a boon to business by creating a demand for more products."

"SLEEPING BEAUTY" MAY SOON WAKE UP, CLAIM

Los Angeles, July 5—The "sleeping beauty" may some day wake up, Dr. W. J. Peacock, chiropractor, in charge of treatment of 21-year-old Mrs. Clara Drummond of Fresno, announced today.

Ninety-four days ago Mrs. Drummond's brain cells were deadened by gas poisoning. Although her physical processes have gone on unimpaired, she has been mentally dead for over three months.

Dr. Peacock believed today that Mrs Drummond is becoming faintly aware of the presence of persons near her. She still is unable, however, to act or to talk consciously.

TALK TO MARS BY BEAM SIGNS IS RADIO PLAN

Scientit Plans Series of Attempts To Make Planet Understand Us

Washington, July 5—Proceeding on the theory that geometrical truths are known to any one intelligent enough to receive a radio or light message, and that inter-planetary communication is not beyond the range of possibility, Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, chief broadcast engineer of the Radio Corporation of America, is planning a series of attempted communications with Mars.

Once the apparatus is set up—either a huge bank of searchlights for a light message, or a beam transmitter of thousands of kilo-watts power for a radio signal, Dr. Goldsmith's program will be this:

Telegraphic Dots

First will be transmitted a sequence of telegraphic dots—followed by another sequence of dots. This is calculated to attract the attention of the inhabitants of Mars. The signals sent from the terrestial station should be such that if received on another planet the idea of regular control would be conveyed.

"This should be carried on for a long time," Dr. Goldsmith said, "even pending with receiving apparatus for the answering signal. My first message would be based on the assumption that geometrical truths are universal and known to anyone intelligent enough to get a light or radio message. The right angle triangle is the most simple of the geometrical truths.

Geometric Message

"Therefore I would seek to indicate the right angle triangle in my message—possibly by using three dots, a space, four dots, space, five dots, then nine, sixteen and twenty-five dots, followed by two sequences of twenty-five dots each, indicating twenty-five as the sum of nine and sixteen.

"If anything similar came back on my ear-phones, or if anything at all came back, the fact that life exists on the planet, that these beings had communication equipment and intelligence would be established.

Owen D. Young says that "if the economical relations of the world are improved, the political relations will take care of themselves." We haven't a doubt of it, Owen. When our economic conditions are satisfactory, life just naturally takes on a rosier tinge. But how are we ever going to make these reformers with pet theories of their own believe it?

Henry Ford says that "farming as it is usually carried on is not an industry which should be allowed to live." What puzzles us is how Henry is able to keep right on selling flivvers to the farmers after slapping their business intelligence like that.

We are more than half inclined to agree with Wayne B. Wheeler in his contention that "to vote a straight ticket with corrupt or bad candidates on it is crooked politics," but the trouble with Wayne is that he always wants to decide who are the good and who are the corrupt candidates, and Wayne does get just a bit prejudiced, at times.

We Have Been Fortunate.

Reading of the flood and wind damage done in the counties to the east and southeast of us last week and having in mind the disastrous floods and wind-storms which have been experienced this year not only in almost all parts of our country, but over almost the entire world, we feel that we of Marion county hardly appreciate how fortunate we have been in escaping the assaults of the atmosphere.

Save for our experience in the great flood, which inundated much of central and southern Ohio, we do not recall a flood of serious proportions in Marion county, and in the flood in question we were far more fortunate than were many of the counties to the south of us. But a small portion of our county was seriously flooded at that time and our losses were limited to property losses. If our memory serves us, there was no direct life loss, though there may have been life loss resulting from sickness caused by exposure during the flood.

And so it has been in the matter of windstorms. There hasn't been a really great windstorm—by this we mean a generally destructive wind-storm—in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. We know that something over a century ago, before the advent of the white man here, a terrific wind-storm swept through the eastern part of what is now Marion county leveling forests like wheat before the scythe of the reaper. Old settlers have handed down the story of the physical evidences of it found by the white men who first populated this section. But aside from this blow of long ago, we haven't had anything approaching a tornado or even a destructive storm.

There are some disadvantages in being upon the crown of Ohio's watershed, 1,000 feet above sea level. We about Marion haven't the high hills, and the deep valleys, and wide streams which make districts to the east and south of us picturesque, but we have a higher average of tillable soil and what we lack in the picturesque is compensated for by the comparative immunity we enjoy from wind-storms, which usually follow water-courses, and the floods which often sweep valley lands.

Our Growing Expenditures.

Are we nearing a situation where it no longer will be profitable to own real estate? Putting it another way, is the increase in the value of realty keeping pace with the increased tax burden real estate is compelled to bear?

These are pertinent questions. If there were doubt of their pertinency, it would be dissipated by figures, just made public by the state tax commission in its report for 1927, which show that the total tax duplicate of the state is $13,330,111,785, an increase of $650,325,285 over the preceding year, $615,013,150 of which increase is on real estate, the remainder of $54,026,570 being on public utilities. It may be said, in passing, that while this increase approximating two-thirds of a billion was placed on the two classifications named, the other three were decreased, bank valuations being cut $3,629,345; other corporations, $2,068,033, and individuals, $12,807,057, which is something of an argument for classification of property for taxation.

We hear a lot and read a lot in type about tax rates. There is constant agitation against increased tax rates. The burden of agitation should be against increased tax valuations which are being boosted steadily. When these boosts occur, does the rate fall? Possibly a faction of a mill for a year or two, and then it begins to rise again, and soon we have an increased tax rate on the increased tax valuation. The trend is almost inevitably upward in both, but where the tax-eaters make their greatest inroads into the pockets of the public is in increased tax valuations.

Of the eighty-eight counties of the state, all save ten showed increased tax valuations this year over last, the total state duplicate showing an increase of 5¼ per cent. over the previous year. The state duplicate has been increased twenty-one per cent. since 1920. The more figures offered, the worse the situation today is shown to be. Since 1911, the state tax duplicate has been more than doubled. Today it is 5 1-3 times greater than it was in 1910 and nearly seven times what it was in 1902.

Today the realty of Ohio is valued for taxation at $9,096,834,490; the public utilities at $1,574,343,800, corporations other than banks at $1,288,456,368; individual returns at $1,122,283,291, and banks at $248,193,843.

Here in Marion county our realty is valued at $58,740,120; our utilities at $14,454,930; car corporations at $5,854,290; our banks at $1,451,950; while our individual returns are $9,716,650, almost twice as great in proportion to our total tax duplicate of $90,308,970 as the total individual tax returns of the state—11,122,283,254 are to the states total duplicate of $13,330,111,785. In other words, the people of Marion county are about twice as well off in the matter of personal property as the people of the state generally—or they are about twice as honest.

One can not help but feel that with such amounts upon which to levy, the tax ratio in Ohio should be considerably reduced. With a total tax duplicate of over $13,000,000,000, it seems to us, the various divisions of the state should be able to get along, were they managed in a business-like way, with far smaller tax rates. Readers may have noted the various proposals coming from Cuyahoga county by which to raise more funds to meet what we were told were pressing needs. Cuyahoga county's tax duplicate is 21.7 per cent. that of the entire state, being $2,900,694,590. With a duplicate so enormous and a tax rate of 23.229 one might imagine that Cuyahoga could get along very comfortably. Were the county and the city of Cleveland operated as a good business man operates his business, the chances are that the country's rate could be considerably reduced.

Let us bring the proposition right home. Does any one imagine that, were the various divisions of Marion county managed with the ability that a good business man shows in conducting his own business, it would be necessary to levy an average rate of 20.864 on our county tax duplicate of $90,308,970?

The entire taxation trend is all wrong. It tends to the defeat of one of the highest principles of citizenship. It is inimicable to the theory that the best citizen, all things considered, is the property-owning citizen. It is an obstacle to home-owning. It penalizes the home-owner, and there is no community equal to a community of home-owners.

The situation is not one where we "oughta have a law." We have far too many laws as it is. What we should have is enough judgment to exercise common sense in the selection of our officials, municipal, county and state, and exhibit ordinary common sense in our expenditures. The fault is that of all of us and the correction of it lies with us and us a'one.

"What has become of the man," asks an exchange, "who was always suing the city because a board in the sidewalk flew up and hit him in the face?" He's now engaged in falling into a hole in the street paving, crippling his back, shattering his nervous system and making him a physical disability for life.

Poems That Live.

SIDONIA.

A withered old woman, she sits in the sun
On the almshouse porch, till the day is done.
Till the dark falls down and each wan star gleams,
Rocking and smiling above her dreams. . .

The white moon walks in the garden-close—
Fragrance of lavender, breath of the rose—
With beating heart she is Marguerite,
As Faust bends low to kiss her feet.
Or she is Carmen with heart of fire,
Child of passionate, mad desire,
Or Aida, grim Death's fair bride,
Or Violetta, who loved and died.
And her voice lifts up in a flood of song
That sweeps from the stage to the breathless throng.
There in the darkness, too thrilled to stir,
Borne afar in the spell of her;
A heavy silence, then wild acclaim
And the night all sweet with her echoed name;
Flowers and jewels and silken things,
Love and the homage of kneeling kings.

A withered old woman, bent low with years.
She stands and stares with eyes all tears;
Her old joints creak, as she stumbles in
With the ghosts of the glories that once had been.

THE WINNING OF THE WEST.

Way To Care for Teeth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A [illegible] friend of mine — me a clipping from a dental journal. He thought I would be interested in the statement:

"In Rio de Janeiro the house of representatives has installed a dentist as a permanent part of the equipment of the house so that the legislators may have their mouths taken care of during their period of service."

This article goes on to say: "As the mouth is the most active part of the legislator it would seem that the people of Brazil have got the right idea first and we should by all means follow suit." Then it says: "Of course, I know nothing of the legislators of South America; opinions must be based upon the ones we have with us."

I am inclined to think that my friend, the dentist, was having fun at my expense. However, South America, and particularly Brazil, is very forward looking in everything having to do with good health. This action of the legislative body of that country is an evidence of the appreciation its members have of the importance of preventing disease. I wish there were the same kind of enthusiasm in this country.

The ultimate result of a dental defect is a striking example of what happens when a physical disability is uncared for in its very beginning. At the start a dental cavity can be filled without any pain. If there is delay, the corrective procedure is somewhat painful. When it is too long delayed it is very painful. But there comes a time when the teeth is so badly broken down that there is nothing to do but remove it.

Common sense teaches that the time to take care of a dental defect is immediately after its discovery. Common sense should teach with equal force that the time to take care of some other physical defect is immediately after its discovery. Common sense should teach another thing, and that is that there should be an effort made to discover these defects before they make themselves known by serious and painful symptoms.

I wish I could impress upon every reader the importance of systematic periodical examinations. If there were in effect a system of examinations, many of the ailments which lead to chronic invalidism or to death would be gotten rid of before they had performed their miserable function.

I hope that the house of representatives in Brazil is giving the same attention to other physical ailments as they are to defects in the teeth. If they are so progressive in dental matters, it is probable they are doing the same thing to avoid Bright's disease, cancer, tuberculosis, heart-disease, and other ailments which ruin a public career. Certainly it is just as important to guard against decay in the general health as it is to guard against decay in the teeth. The same attention given to the rest of the body will bring the happy results that follow early attention to dental trouble.

Editorial Comment.

THE ARMY FLIGHT TO HAWAII.

Too much praise can not be given Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger for their fine flight from San Francisco to Honolulu in a United States army aeroplane. It was strictly a service performance. The hazard was great, but in war even greater hazards have to be faced. What these two gallant officers have proved is that where one plane may go, others can follow. It is now known that in the emergency of war a squadron or several squadrons of planes could fly in formation the 2,400 miles over the Pacific to the relief of Honolulu.

General Patrick's faith not only in the training of his officers, but in the effectiveness of the new aeroplanes built for the army has been justified. He took a great responsibility in ordering Lieutenant Maitland to Hawaii. The navy would, of course, say that planes for overseas work should be fitted with pontoons, even if speed were lost. Happily, the army men got through safely, proving that the service not only possesses some of the best pilots in the world, but competent salt water navigators. Nevertheless, the navy may be right in preferring seaplanes in flights away from land bases. The army argument is, of course, that risks have to be taken in war. It has now sunk battleships by bombing and shown the navy the way to Hawaii. This makes competition between the two services and they thrive by it.

The army air corps seems to be capable of any venture however audacious, however difficult. It had to its credit the wonderful cruise around the world and the Pan-American flight. Now it has made a record for distance flown at sea—and by land planes, too! There can be no doubt that in war the army aviators would attempt anything and always distinguish themselves. Reinforced by the navy and the daring spirits of the marine corps, they could go anywhere.—New York Times.

BATTLE MONUMENTS.

General Pershing announces completion of plans for construction of battle monuments in France and Belgium to commemorate the work of the American expeditionary forces. They have been approved by the Battle Monuments commission of which he is head. Bids will be received this summer and construction carried forward as rapidly as possible.

The program of the commission is in line with previous announcements of its purpose. It calls for the construction of but three major memorials; one at Chateau Thierry, the spot on the Marne most intimately connected in the American imagination with the splendid exploits of the army. The second at St. Mihiel, where the first real American offensive was launched, and the third at Montfaucon, where the struggle was in fact decided.

In addition to these the program calls for a naval monument at Brest, and four small monuments in remoter sections of France and Belgium, commemorative of especially distinguished army units. And besides these will be several monuments erected by the states, and by special groups in honor of their members.

The memorials already planned should be ample. Proper maintenance of all cemeteries is of course assured and the construction of a chapel at each of them.

Several years ago General Pershing warned against indiscriminate construction of memorials. He pointed out that it would be in bad taste for America in this or any other way to give the impression to the traveller in France a generation or two hence that our contribution was greater than that of the allies.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE BELLS OF PRINCETON.

During the commencement exercises at Princeton last week the alumni presented the university with a carillon of 51 bells, which gives old Princeton one of the finest sets of chimes in America. The gift directs attention to the fact that bells are among the most ancient forms of music producers known to man.

The Smithsonian institution has just issued a handbook on musical instruments, prepared by Miss Florence Densmore, in which we are told that all musical instruments, varied and highly developed as they are, can be reduced to four simple classifications. They include sonorous instruments, such as gongs, bells, and rattles; wind instruments, beginning with the flute and ending with the fearsome saxophone; stringed instruments, ranging from the banjo to the piano, and vibrating membranes, including drums, tambourines, and "throat horns."

The reason why the alumni of Princeton chose bells as their gift to their alma mater was probably because "the extent to which man has leaned upon instruments to express his emotions in all phases of existence is illustrated by the bell," according to the compiler of the brochure just issued by the Smithsonian, who adds: "More intimate than any other instrument the bell is associated with the joys and sorrows of mankind. It has rung for weddings and funerals, given the alarm of danger in scenes of peace, and has been heard as the cattle bell. The jester's cap was trimmed with bells and in ancient synagogues the high priests robe was edged with golden bells."—Washington Post.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Bone instruments, unmistakably of human workmanship, believed to be 4,000,000 years old, have been found in Nebraska. They are in the American Museum of Natural History in New York. New discoveries push back the history of the race. We have been coming along the road such a long time. The strange thing is we have learned so little of what it's all about. Would you not have thought that man would have learned more about himself in some millions of years?

Two brothers were arrested in Ohio for the hold-up of a western train four years ago. There is proper criticism of the delays in our courts and the slow, creaking wheels of justice. But the wheels do turn. No man can win in the crime game over the long run.

Chamberlin, fancy flier, says a plane can be produced capable of a non-stop flight around the world. He says some one would need to put up $2,000,000 for research work. What this country most needs is a practical and safe plane for reasonable flights. Flying men will perform their greatest service by developing planes and routes that will meet the needs of commerce and of the greatest number of people.

Speaking of flying or any other new development in the lives of men, millions for research is the right idea. The painstaking research of the laboratory goes before the practical achievements of science. Industrialists will do well to gather millions for more investigation in the realms of pure science. The millions will come home again.

Experts differ. What are the rest of us to think? Walter Link, president of the American Airship association, says fifty commercial dirigibles, converted over night into aerial warships, could protect the United States from invasion by enemy fleets.

Airships, aeroplanes, torpedoes or battleships, what shall it be?

Fred W. Warner was installed as chancellor commander of Marion Lodge, No. 402, Knights of Pythias.

J. C. Brady was installed as president of the Fraternal Censer.

Miss Florine Flinchbaugh, who had disappeared from the home of her aunt six weeks before, returned to the home of her parents near Green Camp. She told the Star that she had returned because she had heard that she had eloped with Captain Worthington, of the police force. No sooner had she heard this than she started home to deny the story and explain where she had been and why she left.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 5—Billing is often more important to the temperamental actor than salary. Frequently a player has seen the opening night electric display in front of the theater enroute to his dressing-room and emphasized his disappointment by refusing to go on.

Recently it was stipulated in the contract of a comedienne that her name was to lead the cast in the billing during the run of the play. Greater luminaries were added, but she insisted upon her legal right. So her name led in midget type while her rivals were heralded in box car letters.

It happens that a lesser player often runs away with a show, overshadowing the star. Temperament follows and as a sop to the obscure player's vanity his name will follow the name of the star and the name of the play by the line, "With Joe Doakes."

Vaudeville folk are especially insistent in stressing the value of billing. Many refuse to accept the spot following the intermission or next to closing. And if the headliner can not gobble up most of the lobby space, fireworks result.

Fred Stone is a notable example of a reverse angle in the itch for billing. For years he and his late partner were billed as "Montgomery and Stone." Montgomery was merely an adroit foil and Stone was the bright particular star, but he did not permit his name first.

An amusing pout was recorded last season when a star arrived at the stage door and happened to glance heavenward. Her name was etched in lights at the rear of the theater, but one letter had flickered out. She refused to appear until its brilliancy was restored.

Producing managers are not untouched by this vanity. If a star is loaned to a fellow producer it is usually stipulated that the line, "By special arrangement with Mr. So-and-So," be displayed in type as big as that for the star. All this may sound silly, but there is a commercial sagacity behind it only theatrical folk understand.

Ziegfeld's fame, for instance, rests largely on gluttonous demands for publicity plus a deft and experienced showmanship. The mere thrill of seeing his name in print has long since lost zest. He does not subscribe to a clipping bureau—at least he did not a few years ago. Yet he will appear to sulk for days over some fancied publicity slight. He is keenly conscious of the fact that the theatrical business is a trade in which to be talked about has actual box office value.

• • •

The itch for a free puff is not confined to the theatrical profession. Reporters see very little coy reluctance in other callings. In years of observation I can think of only two men who had what seemed to me a genuine repugnance to seeing their names in print.

Fraunce's tavern on the lower end of Manhattan island has endured since Revolutionary days. It is where Washington bade farewell to his troops. It is a luncheon place with a background of historical interest. Even the waiters seem to have stepped out of the pages of the past. It is as far removed from uptown cafe tum-tum as the distance between the poles. "How long have you been employed here?" a waiter was asked. He replied: "I have never been employed elsewhere." Old Moquin's on Sixth avenue was another restaurant that never changed. It was originally a farm house and its scarred weatherboarding gave no hint of the culinary wonders within. At one time it had the finest wine cellar in America.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

SIR JOSIAH STAMP.

Josiah Charles Stamp was born June 21, 1880. He is president of the London Midland and Scottish railway, one of the largest carriers in volume of passenger traffic in the world. He was a member of the royal commission on the income tax in 1919, a member of the Northern Ireland finance arbitration committee in 1923 and 1924, and a member of the committee on taxation and the national debt in the latter year. Stamp was created a knight in 1920. He has been an officer and member of various other societies and commissions and is the author of many publications on government and economics.

Sir Josiah refutes the idea that England is "down." He says:

"There is a great deal of misapprehension prevailing among people here regarding the situation in England. Much of this opinion is unduly pessimistic as regards our lot. We're pitied because we're 'through.'

"Now, that is not so at all. True, we're having a hard struggle, but we have the essentials of commercial prosperity and we are froging ahead. We will never, of course, be as rich as America, but we will enjoy substantial prosperity once we get past our immediate difficulties. I call your attention to the fact that our national income now is greater, slightly greater, than before the war.

"No, we are not at all dow nand out, as you say. There also is a great deal of talk about our unemployment. True, there is considerable unemployment in England, due to dislocation of our industries after the war, but if you look at the number of people actually and successfully employed, you will find there are more people employed now than before the war and that we are gradually taking care of more and more all the time.

"The reason for the great unemployment is the new generation growing up; industry is unable to absorb them all at once. But we are absorbing them at the rate of about 150,000 a year. Again, look at the success with which we have borne, with a good deal of pain, we must admit, our enormous national budget of about $4,000,000,000 a year. That means an enormous tax burden, but we are carrying it. That doesn't look as though we're down, does it?

White House, Virtually New, To Be Ready for Coolidges

President and Wife Not To Return to Temporary Dupont Circle Home

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 5—On their return to Washington, the Coolidges—Becky, the 'coon, and all—will move right into the regular White House.

That won't go back to the Dupont Circle chateau where they stayed from early last march until they and their retinue left for the Black Hills, directly after welcoming Lindy home.

The executive mansion at 1600 Pennsylvania-av is being licked into shape for occupancy pretty fast now.

The process is somewhat akin to lifting its face.

What practically amounted to another building had to be put up all around it to keep it from falling flat down while repairs were going on.

Now that the work's about completed, this mask's being peeled off, and there's the original old shack—only rejuvenated.

• • •

IN strict confidence, a new White House is what it really is.

When it's considered that the historic edifice was pronounced unsafe as long ago as General Grant's administration, it isn't hard to understand that it was rather dilapidated by last spring.

The only difference between yanking it down bodily and duplicating it from the ground up and the way these contractors have done it, is that the latter have rebuilt it a bit at a time, without ever having the whole thing in a heap of ruins, all at once.

By this method all its time-honored associations have been preserved.

• • •

IN the meantime the Dupont Circle place continues to attract rubbernecks—in spite of the fact that the Coolidges are out of it and gone for good.

When they moved in, a little sentry box for a policeman was set up outside, right by the front door.

It gives the joint more of an official look than the White House itself—almost like royalty, for that's the kind of little coops they have at palace entrances, across the water.

It's so cute that the police department didn't take it away after the presidential family left, and a big harness bull's still on duty there too day and night, for pure ornament.

It sure catches the tourists who seem to like the view just as well as if Cal weren't 1,500 miles away. Maybe they haven't heard he is, and think that cop's standing guard over him yet.

• • •

AS most folk know, Sen. Jim Reed of Missouri hopes to live in the made-over White House beginning the early part of March, 1929.

What's more, if he can't live there, he doesn't intend to live anywhere else in Washington.

For several years his address has been 1956 Biltmore-st, where he has a nifty house, but in the last few weeks he's given it up and moved all his furniture to Kansas City, whence he came.

Reed announced some time ago that he didn't mean to run for the senate again. Obviously he was sincere about it, for evidently he doesn't consider he'll need a home here any longer, after his present term expires, next spring.

Unless—unless—well, if he should happen to need one later, he reckons it will be provided for him by the government. He won't need to furnish one of his own.

Next winter, it's understood, he plans to hang out at a hotel.

WE all well know how tiresome repetition in any direction is, especially repetition of themes and ideas in motion picture. It seems that no sooner one picture of some originality is produced, or a new subject is treated, than a veritable avalanche of almost identically the same subjects is brought forth and for months the public is imposed upon by imitations, or obliged to stay at home waiting for the trend to veer to some other direction.

Thus, if one successful war picture is released, we are sure to get any number like it, or one film company produces a football game story, every other company in the country, it seems must get one out too, if one producer has found a new angle to a story, you will see it repeated over and over again. Oh, what a bore! Imitation is very seldom successful and time spent in this direction is time lost.

But, at last here is an encouraging sign of relief. One hears that the opinion of the public is shared now by at least one producer, and one hopes that maybe at last it has dawned upon them that the public is bored to death by "sheep production."

Here is what William R. Fraser, general manager of the Harold Lloyd Corporation has to say: "What the motion picture industry needs right now, and needs very badly, is a lot more imagination and considerable less imitation. One producer makes a successful picture of a certain order and literally a score follow. The fact is there are only a few leaders in any industry regarded as pacemakers but in the motion picture business these are watched more closely than in any other line of endeavor. Of course anything they do is imitated and ravaged until the market is swamped with identically the same pictures."

Columbia Pictures announce that they have acquired for immediate release and general distribution, "The Menace of the Mississippi" at two reeler, depicting the story of America's greatest flood. This picture was taken at the risk of the lives of many cameramen and was two months in the making. It depicts the loss of human lives and millions of dollars in property and live stock. It traces the flood's course from Cairo to the Gulf of Mexico by means of maps.

Milton Sills is to star in Jack London's Alaskan story, "Burning Daylight." His role will be as a Thor of the North Country, champion dog racer, champion poker player and athlete.

To replace "They Knew What They Wanted," Pola Negri's next picture will be "Sun Kissed," a story of the California orange groves.

John McDermott will write the scenario for a new production of "Tillie's Punctured Romance," the vehicle which brought Marie Dressler into the screen limelight some years ago.

George Bancroft and Olive Brock are featured in "Underworld," a story of modern crime.

A European stage actor, Max Barwyn, will play Napoleon in the "Fighting Eagle," which will star Rod La Rocque.

Announcement has just been made of the purchase of the screen rights of "The Student Prince," founded upon the operetta, "The Student Prince." The cast includes Ramon Novarro, Norma Shearer and Jean Hersholt.

"Dejeuner de Soleil" ("Breakfast at Sunrise") is an amusing farce of sophisticated Paris life, featuring Constance Talmadge. She is supported by an excellent cast such as Don Alvarado, Bryant Washburn, Marie Dressler and others.

More Than 60,000 Calls Registered at Telephone Office Daily, Records Show

As a result of business, friendship and engagement making talks, there are three times during every day when the telephones are used a great deal more than any other, A. J. Berry, manager of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., declared.

The busiest period of any time during the day, Manager Berry claims to be that from 7 to 8:30 every night. This period can be attributed to the many calls that are made by persons, who, after being secluded at their work during the day, do their talking and make their business and other engagements at that time.

Possibly the next busiest hour of the day is the 60 minutes between 11 and 12 o'clock in the morning. The cause of this hurried and busy section of the day really falls on the business calls and the neighborly or friendship talks of the housewife. After completing the work of the morning and with the noon-day meal on the stove, the "hard-working housewife" takes a moment off to call up her dear friend or relative.

With the opening of a majority of the local business houses, the phone calls are extremely heavy at from 8 until 9 o'clock every morning. Not many engagement making calls or friendship talks are made at that hour, a survey discloses. Most of the business calls of the day are done at that time.

With an average of eight calls for every phone in Marion, more than 60,000 calls are registered by the people of this city and county every day, Manager Berry declares. There are nearly 8,000 phones now in use all over the city and some parts of the county.

An average of 430 long distance calls are made every day from Marion. Even though a majority are made at night when a special rate is available, the peak of the calls for a single hour is from 8 to 9 o'clock every day, so states Manager Berry. An evening rate goes into effect at the local office at 7 o'clock and the night rate starts at 8:30 o'clock and lasts until 4:30 a. m.

AN ADVICE COLUMN

The "Sissy"

BY VIRGINIA LEE

THE SISSY—DC BOX HEAD

JUST what is a "sissy?" It is what all male creatures from the cradle up detest, apparently, and it is supposed to be not overly popular with the feminine contingent. To avoid being called a "sissy" a boy will do almost anything, I've discovered.

Now, how will one define this terrible bugaboo? Does a lack of physical strength make one one? Or is it a lack of courage? Can a man be a sissy if he has not an effeminate manner?

• • •

One of my young readers wants this point settled so that he may avoid all semblance of the horrid thing.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: How can I keep from being thought a sissy? All my life this has worried me. I am not effeminate in my manner, I think. I am tall, play decent ball and am fond of all sports. And yet, for some reason or other the fellows think I'm a sissy and the girls, too, I think. At any rate, they think I am "slow." I am 18. What can I do to prove that I am a real 'he man' and not a sissy?

"RALPH."

Don't you think you are a bit sensitive, Ralph, and imagine that people think what they probably do not? I thought the kind of person who was called "sissy" was an effeminate person know with a soft voice and a dislike of the usual male diversions. They are usually fine men, however. The few that I have known have been, any way, and have made good financially and tackled life's burdens in a manner to shame many a "he man." The best advice I can offer you is that you make up your mind to live your own life and follow your inclinations in spite of what anyone may say. That will show that you are your own man.

• • •

WHAT does one do when one has the "wanderlust," but no means to gratify it?

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl of eighteen and am working, but do not earn much at present. I live at home. My trouble is this: I want to travel. I want to see the world, but having little money I cannot save enough to go. What can I do to earn more money or how can I satisfy my craving?

"ROVER"

Write to travel bureaus, steamship and railroad offices and see what jobs they have that require traveling, and what the requirements are. Then fit yourself for such a position. Sometimes one sees advertisements for companions who would not object to traveling. And don't get discouraged. "Where there's a will there's a way," you know.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

The flaming dawn lit the eastern sky and the walls of the Temple of Doom, which, beautiful, were tinted with rose and gold hue. On the sloping road that led from the Temple and the pass into the valley, a great concourse of men knelt at the hour while a group of marabouts, their scarlet robes reflecting back the blood-red of the dawn, knelt similarly on the broad, flat surface of the tower over the gate of the Daggers.

Like a raised platform built on the tower there reposed an object that glowed like red gold. It was the dawn mouloud, the anniversary of the Prophet's birth, a day observed as the holiest of holies throughout the whole of Islam, a day that in this instance was to see a new sheriff step to power over the seven tribes.

Larry, kneeling with Tribes Three and Five on the platform, felt a little dizzy. He had left Benna safe in the quarters there—rather the quarters of Tribe One, whose place he had taken, he had seen Omar ben Medjad disappear quietly, and he knew that Tribes Four and Seven were out among the armed men of the encampment, no doubt garbed in their scarlet robes, organized as soldiers, stirring up suggestions and fanaticisms among the tribes against the hour when the Eye was to be shown.

Kneeling thus, he wondered why it had been that no word of the affair in the room of the Prophet's Eye had come to the marabouts, and decided that possibly the deaths of the holy men and the guards would not be found out until the next tending of the fire. Perhaps the terrific explosions of dynamite and his own reputation as a wizard had been sufficient to maintain quiet among the prisoners, the slaves and their keepers, so that they had not heard. But he felt uneasy, as though hidden menace were hanging over his head.

The prayer ended and now the multitude rose—thousands and thousands of men—and drawn up in serried ranks that reached from the walls of the temple to the crest of the road, sloping side of the hill. Eager eyes were raised in a mighty shout. Voices were calling on Larry to show the Eye, greatest of all the marabouts and virtually the ruler of the Atlas at that moment to crown the new sheriff.

He stepped forward and his hand dipped to the box, lifting it. He held it high, turning it this way and that as the morning sun fell on it squarely, lighting up every knob and crevice, revealing the minute, artistic carvings in detail. The shout that had gone before was as a zephyr across a western prairie compared with the mighty din that now arose—a din that could be likened only to a Niagara suddenly brought here to this vast, forgotten land and allowed to pour its roaring flood of waters over the edge of the peak that stalked, just above the Temple, straight up toward the cerulean blue of the soft Moroccan sky.

Gleaming swords were raised high and long barreled rifles were shaken in the air, while slender, plumed lances were tossed like the waving of wheat in a heavy wind. The mighty encampment was stirring, like a great reptile that has been sleeping and awakens to start a slithering release of its coils. The ten thousand and more who were crowded on the slope of the front of the Temple moved with eager, restless little motions. From a thousand points came calls, but owing to the confusion of sound Larry could distinguish no word of what was being said. But it was obvious that demands were being made—that he was being called upon to perform a task that so far had remained unaccomplished. Puzzled he permitted his eyes to sweep out over the concourse.

And he saw one, bizarre of costume, reckless of carriage lifted into the air by willing hands and he noted that deep silence was falling over the assemblage. He leaned forward slightly, waiting to see what was coming. His scarlet robed companions, beside him on the platform, stirred uneasily. He heard Tribe Five:

"It is in my mind that they desire to see the Sacred Eye itself. Time one. Not for a full decade has the box been opened. The Sheikh el-Hassan is a breeder. The Sheikh el-Hassan is a breeder of trouble. At a late date he must be punished."

A deathly stillness had settled over the concourse on the slope and the Sheikh Tahar el Hassan was lifting his hands, commanding attention. Larry fixed his eyes on the man, straining his ears to catch what Omar ben Mediad might say. He saw other faces, thousands of them turned toward the sheikh; then he caught words:

"The Eye, O tribes of the Berbers, we would see the Eye. Open the case that it may be revealed to us. In the old days the Sheriff Omar ben Mansour el Masmari did wear the Eye. Who shall wear it today?"

Larry saw Tribe Five step forward and heard the marabout's voice roar across the sea of faces:

"Why does the Sheikh Tahar el-Hassan demand that which the Marabout Group is not yet ready to do? What authority has the Sheikh Tahar el Hassan to make such a demand?

And now came back the bold, reckless voice of the sheikh, literally singing its way through the muffled noise of moving bodies and shuffling feet, so that it fell clearly on the ears of the group on the platform: reached, too, a preponderance of those who stood on the slope.

"I demand to see the Eye and to have the new sheriff crowned because it has reached the ears of this camp that the marabouts have removed the Eye and cannot produce the sheriff they promised; as for my authority, five thousand guns and lances and swords surround me, all of them looking upon you; two thousand brave swords are near me, all of them looking directly to the Sheikh Tahar el-Hassan of the southernmost tribe for leadership. Aye, Scarlet Robes, the Swords of the South, whom I bring to the mouloud, demand sight of the Eye, demand the new sheriff. I but speak for them."

Larry sensing the approach of a crisis, stepped to the edge of the platform and held up his hands. At this, the assembled ranks stirred restlessly, like the shifting waves of a sunlit sea. The American's voice boomed across the slope.

"The Marabout Group shall not attempt a decision on this issue. It is too great and it is the right of every man to speak for himself. Let those who would see the Eye and who want a sheriff at once step to the left, where the Sheikh Tahar el Hassan commands his Swords of the South. Let those who believe in the supreme power of the Marabout Group step to the right, where Tribe Five shall speak for them."

As he voiced the words Larry's mind was racing with the thought that there might easily be a test of strength, here might come a chance to foment a rebellion within the Moorish ranks and if a preponderance of power could be swung to Omar ben Medjad's banners, then, when the case was opened and shown to be empty, might not those who still clung to the Marabout Group shift their allegiance and go over bodily to the reckless prancing from the south? He wondered and waited.

Came a shifting in the ranks. Arms gleamed in the morning sun and bodies jostled bodies as a movement in two directions got under way. Above the storm of shuffling feet and clanking arms, Larry heard Omar's voice.

"Truly, Tribe One you are a man of wisdom. Only Allah himself could have decided with more wisdom. Larry grasped that Omar was trying to tell him that he approved of his course.

It required a half hour for the shift to take place and when at the end of that time two great bodies of men were drawn up with a space of fifty feet separating them, Larry calculated swiftly. Unless his eyes tricked him, the men who had stepped over to the side headed by Omar ben Medjad were slightly in a majority. His heart exulted and he faced the coming test with confidence. Now came Omar's voice again.

"The division of forces is made, judge whether a majority desires to see the Eye and to see their new sheriff."

Larry heard Tribe Three:

"Of a surety we must open the case, Tribe One. The sheikh has a following that is apt to prove formidable if it is crossed. Show them the Eye, then, and have done with it. We shall do as we may about the sheriffy, even if it means fetching Allal Abdi. Time moves apace and the road is a long one."

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

VERITZEN CURIOUS

MR VERITZEN laughed with apparently unconcerned gaiety at Lillian's gibe that he was as curious as she concerning my clever new neighbors, the tenants of The Larches. But there was a note in the laughter which struck a response in the intuition which is generally counted a feminine prerogative. It told me that while Lillian's curiosity concerning the Lancelns was an ephemeral thing, having its origin in her admiration of The Larches, and her fantastic wish to own it, Philip Veritzen's interest lay deeper.

That inwardly he was quite excited about the account of my new neighbors he had asked me to give I was quite sure. Whether his interest was rooted in his knowledge that he was of Transylvanian birth himself, something that he patently did not intend to reveal to us, or whether it lay in something else, I could not tell but I had an odd little conviction that he expected some definite bit of information from the story I was about to tell.

Another conviction came to me that I must tell this story more carefully than if it were the casual description of the new tenants of The Larches for which Lillian had asked. I must be careful to be accurate, to exaggerate nothing. On the other hand, I must not slur any part of my tale. Just why I felt this, I could not tell but a certain little intuitive warning bell was sounding deep in my consciousness. It is a warning many odd, almost eerie happenings have trained me always to heed and I realized that I could not give this account of our experiences with our new neighbors until I had more time to marshal the incidents of the story in my mind and be very sure that I had omitted nothing.

With the resolution to put off the telling of the tale until I had had time to "refresh my memory" in lawyer parlance, I looked over at Lillian quizzically.

"Your attack of curiosity won't prove fatal if unappeased for two or three hours more, will it?" I asked, at the same time giving her a much used tune private signal of our own, which meant "delay the game."

She played up to my cue promptly.

"Just so I get the low down on it all, finally, I don't mind waiting a bit,' she said.

I turned to Philip Veritzen with a deprecatory little smile.

"It has been so long since I have seen these hills," I said "that I hate to waste time talking. Don't you think the story of my new neighbors would make a good dinner table talk?"

Over his face flashed a look of courteous concern.

"Oh, I'm sorry we've spoiled your enjoyment of the view," he said.

"You haven't," I assured him earnestly. "I've been rude enough to keep my eyes fixed on the countryside most of the time. But I know I can't tell this story and look at the hills, too. It's too long and they're too entrancing."

"Then we'll have it as a condiment for the dinner," he said. "Which reminds me."

He took the speaking tube down with an excuse to us and spoke into it.

"At the next convenient place for telephoning, Otto, draw up the car I want to send a message."

The man did not turn his eyes away from the road ahead, but his right hand went up in a swift smart salute, and at the next village he drew up the car before a well appointed drug store with a telephone sign booth prominently displayed.

"May I get either of you an ice or a soda?" our host asked as he descended from the car. "I am going to order our dinner to be ready for serving in an hour from now. That leaves time for the changing of a tire. There is no other probable delay."

"Are you asking us to spoil one of your dinners with a soda, Philip Veritzen?" Lillian demanded. "We haven't taken leave of our senses if you have."

He laughed and walked into the drug store. As the door closed he had him, Lillian cast a cautious glance at Otto's back.

"Who did you give me the high sign' just now?" she asked.

Mary's Escapade

At Lillian's query as to why I had given her the "high sign" when I had asked to delay until the dinner hour my story of the odd tenants at The Larches, I, too, gave a cautious glance at the chauffeur standing at attention outside the car during his master's absence in the drug store, and made certain that he could not hear me.

"Because I had one of my 'hunches,' I whispered, "that our host is much more interested in the story than he pretends to be, and I wanted to be very sure that I had all the details in order before I retlated them."

"I thought it was something like that,' Lillian replied. "Well! I'll back one of your hunches any day. But isn't this like Phil Veritzen to order our dinner served in an hour without ever asking us about any preference as to food? But that's his pet stunt when he's giving a dinner. He knows a good deal about my favorite dishes—I used to play around with him quite a bit—and I'll warrant he's found out a few things about yours."

I nodded, flushing as I remembered the luncheons to which Mr. Veritzen, upon the pretext of continuing office discussions, used to invite me, always being careful that some other member of his staff shared our table. Looking back upon those luncheons I could see that Mr. Veritzen by adroit questioning indeed had "found out a few things" about my gastronomic preferences.

"And you'll find he has forgotten no detail when that dinner is served," Lillian commented. "But tell me quickly, before he comes back, is Noel still staying down near you at Tiver's?"

"Yes, he is there, when he isn't decorating our front veranda, talking to Mary," I answered with a smile, as I thought of young Noel Veritzen's devotion to Dicky's niece.

"Still, as infatuated as ever, I suppose," Lillian commented. "You know that's going to be a complication when Mary goes back to his father's training. You know Phil Veritzen's commandment: 'Thou shalt have no distractions from my rigid rules.'"

"I don't believe Mary will ever go back to his training. I said quietly.

"She isn't quitting!" Lillian sat erect, her face horrified.

"No," I answered coldly, for the memory of Lillian's reluctance to bring her daughter to our home because of Mary's presence there still rankled. "But she has made up her mind to tell Mr. Veritzen everything concerning her escapade as the masked dancer."

Lillian's face lifted with sudden spontaneous admiration.

"Why! the plucky little thing!" she exclaimed. "I didn't know she had it in her. She didn't need to do it either. There isn't a chance in a thousand that Phil ever would discover it. Jack Leslie's blabbing would be the only thing she'd ever have to fear, and I think Hugh Grantland put the fear of God into him that night so thoroughly that he would never dare to voice whatever knowledge he had."

She looked thoughtfully into space for an instant, then lifted her head and gazed steadily at me.

"I'm a bit like Kipling, 'Disko Troop,'" she said. "I don't like to be mistook in my judgments. Tell me, Madge, did this stunt of telling Phil originate with Mary, herself, or did you?"

"It was Mary's own thought entirely," I said. "I had nothing to do with it except to point out to her as you have, that Mr. Veritzen would be extremely unlikely to find it out by himself."

She cupped her chin in her palms, with her elbows resting on her knees, a posture most familiar to me, for she unconsciously adopts it whenever she is thinking out a problem, and looked steadily at the floor of the car for a long minute.

"I've been most unjust to Mary," she said, her voice holding the pain which is always hers when she has misjudged someone. "I must talk this over with you, but here comes Phil out of the drug store door now. This will have to be continued in our next."

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing. Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Beans bake to a rich tenderness

Better than any modern way of baking beans is the Maine woods' method of baking them outdoors. The long, slow baking—hours and hours, till they are tender and brown clear through, gives them an irresistible "woods" flavor.

Bean Hole Beans, a wonderful new product, match perfectly the baked-in-the-ground flavor of "bean-hole" beans as baked in the north woods.

The secret? Partly a new way of cooking, and partly the use of a lavish old-fashioned recipe.

A generous piece of sugar-cured prime pork, lots of molasses and brown sugar—these blend with the plump beans and drip juicily through them.

Serve them tomorrow and see how your family will enjoy their "woods" flavor.

HARDING HIGH QUIVER ISSUED TO STUDENTS

Year Book Dedicated to President Warren G. Harding; History Given

The Quiver, annual publication of Harding High School, bound in a black cover bearing the engraved portrait of the late President Warren G. Harding, was issued at the school today, a late but finished product.

President Harding, after whom the local high school was named, is the principal figure in the volume of the Quiver which appeared today. His life and history-making events and incidents in which he was involved compose the theme of the book.

With the exception of the senior and faculty sections of the book the borders for each page carries both the first building in which Harding resided, his birthplace near Caledonia and the last, the capitol building in Washington.

The main sections of the volume are introduced by an event in the public and political life of President Harding. For the administration section the leading division of the book for 1926-27 is carried out by a picture of Mr. Harding and President Coolidge, then vice president, at their desks in Washington.

President and Mrs. Harding at the baccalaureate exercises of William and Mary College during his executive rule, carries the plan of the book in the Classes section.

Activities Section

The activities part of the volume is illustrated with a view of Harding [illegible] Arrington National Guard [illegible] Harding at the Star [illegible] a view of a picture [illegible] president with [illegible] and inclusion of a caricature of [illegible] A picture of Harding [illegible] during a speech [illegible] of the Harding and Kings [illegible] the Harding and Kings [illegible]

Harding at the helm of the [illegible] shown under at Arrington is the [illegible] cut page for organization portrait of the book. Four sections used each for the book [illegible] past pictures all of the [illegible] organizations, [illegible] and athletic societies.

Heading the athletic division page is a view of the 1926 pennant playing the favorite game and pastime, golf. The picture was taken on Fort in during [illegible] there.

Other Divisions

The remaining sections of the book, literary, humor and the advertising section are also [illegible] and events in the life of Harding. The literary section shows the president reading the events of the day, the humor section views a meeting of Laddie Boy, Harding's dog and president while the advertising section brings out the love of chief [illegible] for his home surroundings in a picture showing a garden.

Dedication of the book has been made to the spirit of President Harding by the editors. The brief sketch of [illegible] states: We dedicate this [illegible] not so much to the life of our [illegible] but to the spirit that made that life. To the spirit that proved to us that sibling [illegible] lends encouragement, greatness begins with us [illegible] One community has [illegible] To him and his [illegible] this book is respectfully dedicated.

A [illegible] as was the custom of former [illegible] has been excluded from the volume and in its place is well-presented opening section [illegible] were given to end at the bottom of each page.

Senior Portraits

The senior [illegible] appear on each of the pages in the senior section. Names of the seniors together with [illegible] and the courses are [illegible] in the pictures printed on a background of the [illegible] capitol at Washington.

All of the classes at Harding High school are also the [illegible] freshmen classes of the junior high schools are represented in the Classes section of the volume. The pictures of the officers and the groups of each class are shown along with the class [illegible].

New sections of the book are a [illegible] division of the athletic main division and a cartoon section portraying all of the events of the school year for each month. The cartoon work was done by Paul Roller.

The printing of the [illegible] books which were received at the high school this morning was done in black with the border in light blue.

Due to the necessity of [illegible] several cuts in the book, the publication date set for the last days of the school year was postponed indefinitely and thus caused the delay in issuing the volume until today.

Credit For Book

A large part of the credit for the book which is believed to be one of the best ever issued at the local high school, belongs to Oscar Hetherington, editor-in-chief and to Miss Lucile Foreman, faculty [illegible]. Richard Parson is the business manager of the book and is deserving of a great deal of credit for placing it on the market on a paying basis after obtaining sufficient advertising and nearly 600 subscriptions.

Other members of the staff include Lyle Holverstott, news editor; Paul Roller, art; Lucile Knight, exchange; Marion Rote, humor; Virginia Smith, literary and George Gretzer, photo.

Members of the business staff include Edward Shaw, assistant business manager; Harold Waddell, advertising manager; Walter Moore, assistant advertising manager; Kyle Porrey, circulation manager; Robert Dixon, assistant circulation manager; Herbert Hendley, Lucile Shindler and Verna Mae Doyle, circulation accountants. Reporters and assistant editors on the staff were: Adolfe Bohler, Jean De Wolf, Ralph Hinkins, George Stafford, Evelyn Ervin, Virginia Wilson, Jane Gerber, Eva Snodgrass, Darrel Ludwig, Helen Carhart and Elizabeth [illegible].

TWO MARION PATROLMEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Officers Ira Shrock and Harry Smith Injured in Crossing Crash

Patrolmen Ira Shrock and Harry Smith narrowly escaped serious injury or death early yesterday morning when the Ford coupe in which they were riding was struck by a Erie freight train at the Oak st. crossing. Both escaped with cuts about the hands and arms from flying glass.

The officers were patrolling the streets in the machine, which was the property of Shrock, and were driving north on Oak st. As they approached the crossing the train was visible and they drove on the track directly in front of a car of freight [illegible] length over the crossing.

The automobile was dragged [illegible] feet and badly wrecked before the engine train was brought to a stop. The two officers were thrown free of the machine and escaped with cuts on the hands and arms. They were able to walk to the office of Dr. H. L. Lider, 149 N. Prospect st. where their injuries were dressed. The patrolmen were able to report for duty last night.

FIRECRACKER CAUSES SLIGHT ROOF DAMAGE

A firecracker thrown on the roof by children was responsible for a small fire at the home of Edward West, N. Main st. at 3:45 Sunday afternoon. The blaze was discovered by members of the family who put out the fire with buckets of water, before the arrival of the department from No. 3 station. The loss was estimated by Fire Chief McKenzie at several dollars.

CELEBRATION AT MT. GILEAD IS GREAT SUCCESS

Horse Racing and Ball Games Feature Independence Day Program

Mt. Gilead, July 5—Mt. Gilead enjoyed one of the most successful attempts at a "home town celebration" ever featured in Morrow County yesterday.

Festivities were held on the Morrow County Fair Grounds and began early in the morning and lasted until night. No night display was planned or given.

The big fete began in the morning with a kitten ball game between the Carlington M. E. Sunday School and the Mt. Gilead M. E. Sunday School which Mt. Gilead won by a score of 18 to 17. Mt. Gilead's line up was: Doane, C. Jenson, Makeever, Wilson, H. Jenson, W. Crayne, Harkson, Thompson, White and C. Crayne. Carlington ran the following men: Esherman, Maxwell, Thomas, F. Sherman, Haycook, G. Sherman, Sanderson, Williams, McClenathan, and Alga. The prize was a new recreational ball.

Baseball Game

This game was followed by a baseball game between two Morrow County factions under the subsequents of the All Stars and the Independents which was won by the Independents by a score of 9-8. The Independents consisted of Bennett, Wilson, C. Levering, England, Ireland, F. Levering, Blayney, Chubb and Reeder. The All Star team consisted of Rusk, Cuse, Edgington, Bell, Sanderson, Seim, Donovan, Cruley and Sherman. The prize was a new baseball.

After the picnic dinner which immediately followed, the horse races began, the horses being from local training quarters.

The first event was the 2:25 pace which Bell Worthy, owned and driven by Benjamin Olds, won by taking the first two heats over McW. and Barney Boy, both owned by Dick Wilson. The time was 2:22¾ and 2:27¼.

Money Split

This was followed by the 2:18 pace which was declared a tie in the second heat between Miss Caledonia owned by Harrison and Babe Booze owned and driven by Olds. The horses only went two heats and the judges and drivers agreed to split the money rather than send the horses through another grueling heat. The time was 2:13 and 2:15½. The other entries were Tramp Sure owned by Barry and Wilson and King Volo owned by Wilson.

Last was the 2:15 pace, which was also an undecided race. The tie horses were Hipockets owned by Olds and Peter Brown owned by Wilson, which set the time of 2:14¼ and 2:12 in two heats. The other two entries were Nellie owned by Olds and Dillard Winters owned by Dunbaugh.

All the winners won prizes of $20, $15, $10 and $5 in merchandise which is to be picked by the winner.

Lad Hero Jockey

Among the features of the day were the mule and horse running races. A fair haired boy named Brollier, who appeared to be about 13, won the praise of the entire audience when he won the horse running race from five contestants by going two consecutive half mile heats in 59 and 60 seconds respectively. He entered against many older and apparently better riders and was feared for by some, but when the starter gave the signal he was the first away and remained ahead both heats. The mule race was won by Ray Kidwell, who managed to coax one of the stubborn creatures around the half mile track in 1:20.

The judges for all racing events were H. R. Talmadge, C. Q. Carlisle, and J. D. Vail.

Horseshoe pitching wound up the day.

DESERTED CITY

No Fireworks, Accidents Reported at Galion

Galion, July 5—As a reward for the enforced quietude yesterday, no accidents or even slight injuries resulting from use of fireworks were reported by either city or medical authorities. Streets of the city were gay with flags but no other means of celebration were provided. Instead of former methods of observing the day, Galionites sought picnic grounds and amusement parks in pursuit of recreation and the city devoid even of the customary street parade and baseball game, presented a rather deserted picture.

KENTON REDS BALL CLUB BREAKS EVEN ON GAMES

Drops Match with Columbus Outfit and Win from Toledo Crew

Kenton, July 5—The Kenton Reds Baseball Club broke even in their holiday game series losing to the Columbus N. & W. All Star colored team, 7 to 5, July 4 and winning from the Toledo Police, 4 to 1, Sunday.

Both contests, featured by real baseball and close plays, provided record crowds of fans with plenty of thrills.

A ninth inning rally netting two runs won the July 4 game for the colored lads, after Kenton had tied the score at five all in the sixth frame. Getting to Hathcock, veteran Red twirler in the first frame, the visiting club pushed across five scores. They were held scoreless until the last inning.

The Redlegs batted Hinton, N. & W. hurler, for two hits and three runs in the opening inning and then scored again in the third and sixth frames. With men on bases in the third and fourth, Kenton had an excellent chance to sew up the game but her batsmen failed to deliver the required hits.

The locals excelled in fielding, only three errors being chalked up while a total of seven errors were recorded against the colored team.

With Hathcock hurling excellent ball, the Reds had little difficulty in beating the coppers Sunday. Batting out two hits in the fifth frame, Kenton scored her lone tallies while Toledo was able to make but one counter and that in the seventh. Costly errors by Toledo also enabled the locals in scoring.

Play in Sunday's game was marred somewhat when Chim Langrel, star second sacker of Kenton, was hit in the head by a batted ball and knocked unconscious for more than 10 minutes.

R. S. LATHAM, 99, DIES AT HOME NEAR KENTON

Veteran of 1849 Gold Rush Is Claimed by Death

Kenton, July 5—Royal Sheldon Latham, pioneer Hardin County resident and one of the few surviving veterans of that history making and dramatic gold rush of the "forty-niners," died at the home of his son, Reed, seven miles east of here, late Monday afternoon as he neared his 100th birthday.

The death of this venerable retired farmer marks the close of a colorful career that was highly reminiscent of early pioneer days and the historic past. Though enfeebled by years the deceased did not become seriously ill until several week ago.

Mental Faculties Alert

Until his last illness his mental faculties were alert and his remarkable memory well preserved. He vividly recalled the hardships, inconveniences, pleasures and thrilling experiences of those days when more than 50,000 persons were lured across the wild and uncharted expanse of Western Plains, deserts and mountains in quest of gold.

Latham's parents both school teachers and the father a graduate of Harvard University, died early in his youth and at the age of 6 years he became a bond boy in the home of a neighbor in Eden Township, Seneca County, Ohio. There he remained for 15 years until the news of the discovery of gold on the west coast stirred the country.

Disposing of the pony he received in payment for his labor as bond boy, for $100, he joined Captain L. N. Reed and a small party on that historic trek westward.

Crossed Isthmus On Foot

At the close of three successful years in the California gold fields, Latham, Captain Reed and the remainder of the party returned home by way of the Isthmus of Panama. Mr. Latham was one of the six men who crossed the isthmus on foot a distance of 28 miles in one day—a remarkable feat.

The deceased was born Jan. 15, 1828. On Dec. 24, 1852 he was united in marriage to Lucinda J. Kelly, and to this union two children were born: Orlando, deceased, and Alice, now Mrs. John S. Binkley of Atchison, Kansas. Mrs. Latham died May 6, 1858. In 1860 he was again married, to Mrs. Hettie Watson of Pennsylvania. Two children were born, Reed of Goshen Township, and Mrs. Jeanie McRoberts of Oberlin. Others surviving are 11 grandchildren and 3 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Hopewell church in charge of Rev. E. V. Belles, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Kenton, and Rev. Mr. Bartlett, Hepburn. Interment in Grove cemetery. Mr. Latham was a member of the Presbyterian church here.

Athletics and Olds Motors Split Double Bill

SPORT SAUCE

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB

EVERY recreational ball team in a Marion city league has lost a game as the schedule swings into the second series of the second round today.

Goetz undefeated for seven games the Lutherans in the second round School league were the last to fall. They met defeat at the hands of Epworth No. 2 and it took some effort to down them.

Only one league harbors a tie for first place. That is the greatly befuddled Commercial league, the group which suffers more upsets in one week than any other league does in six. The Sheets and Eagles are tied for first at present with four teams tied for second and on their heels trying for blood.

Just what will happen in that league is not to be forecast. It's a free-for-all fight and we predict that it will continue a free-for-all until the last series when some team will have to come down off its perch.

The Commercial League also is the only league to go through the season so far without being hindered by a postponed game.

THE Erie Office hobia hide began of taking the banner in the American loop. Its team is equipped with a set of sluggers that is bound to get somewhere and members of the crew are not slow in telling us where they are going to finish.

CALVARY NO. 3 feels relieved to see Wesley M. E. where it is. After holding a lead for five consecutive games, the Wesley crew has lost its last three games for no reason at all—except that the opposing team in each case has played better ball.

Calvary is leading the first Sunday School league with six victories and two defeats with its most serious opponent being John H. Clarke Epworth No. 1 team which has come back into prominence after dropping down to third place in the first round. Epworth No. 1 has only lost two games but have only won five, having a postponed game to play off with the Epworth Seniors.

There seems to be some argument as to whether or not this game will ever be played.

THE Steam Shovel Shops are out in front in the Industrial League, and, with Bacon on the mound during the rest of the season, hopes to stay there. Osgood, with Toomire acting as slab artist, is a long ways from the top but can do serious damage to a number of the so-called strong teams.

BRAE BURN CLUB

The Brae Burn Country Club of West Newton, Mass., where next year's amateur golf championship is to be held, was the scene of the national open title event in 1919, in which year Walter C. Hagen was the winner.

A gossip puts two and two together and starts a rumor; and every retailer of it puts two and two more together.

MARION BINCOS TAKE FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN

Defeat Somerville Reds, 5-1, in Preliminary at Lincoln Park

THE Marion Bincos won their fourth straight victory in the Tri-county league Sunday afternoon when they trounced the Somerville Reds, 5 to 1, in a preliminary game to the Athletics-Olds Motors clash at Lincoln Park.

Kenneth Fields, on the mound for the locals, pitched a great game and received splendid support. Walker Marsh catcher was knocked unconscious early in the game when he collided with the grass box while trying to nab a foul but came back strong as ever when again needed.

The local team has gone through one round of games in the Tri-County league and has not every club in the loop without suffering a defeat. A clean-up on the standings is to be made every week, following several mix-up at times.

Greenway pitched for the visitors here Sunday and will probably be on the mound next Sunday when the Bincos journey to Somerville for a return game.

E. C. Mackan umpired the game Sunday.

Toledo Club Cops First Game But Marion Outfit Wins in Second Attempt

Main Unable To Hold Toledo Sluggers, but Reese Turns Trick in Monday's Contest; Four Home Runs Chalked Up in Games

MARION ATHLETICS broke even in a double-header with the Toledo Oil's Motors over the Fourth of July. They dropped the first game Sunday, 10 to 7 but came back strong in the second tilt on the Fourth and won the battle, 8 to 6.

For the second time this season, Morris Main, Marion moundsman, was unable to stop the invading sluggers from Northwestern Ohio and it finally took Reese to turn the trick. He gave 11 hits in the second game Monday but they were scattered over the nine innings in such a manner that Toledo made not more than one run in any one frame.

In the course of events at Lincoln Park during the two days, four home runs were chalked up, with Marion getting three of the quartet. After knocking out a long hit that struck the fence two feet from the top in the third inning of the game Sunday, Bacon came back a few innings later to slam one over the boards. It was his third circuit clout of the season. Rizor and Nunviller each collected a four-sacker in the second contest. Stearns, visiting first baseman, made the other homer.

Stars Early

Toledo lost no time in starting festivities Sunday afternoon. Five runs were marked up as the Oil's Motors circled around the bases in that frame. Marion tried the same stunt but was held to two tallies. After resting a couple of innings, the visitors again went on a spree, stopping at the four mark on this occasion. The Athletics did the same thing in the fifth and, with the score standing 10 to 6 against them, almost started a rally in the ninth when Bacon cracked out his home run.

Main allowed more hits in Sunday's game than he has in the last three combined. Toledo collected 12 bingles while Marion was able to gather only eight off Comstock. Main struck out four and Comstock fanned five.

Reese pitched great ball in the game yesterday and received excellent support. It was one of the best games seen on the local diamond this season with plenty of thrills. Marion received only seven hits but two of them were home runs, with Rizor and Nunviller wielding the stick. Rizor also received a double and was the only man on the Marion outfit to get two hits Monday.

Wittmer Knocked Out

Wittmer pitched for the Oil's Motors, but took his shower a little earlier than his teammates when Marion knocked him all over the lot in the seventh frame for four runs. Marsh, playing centerfield for the Toledo crew, relieved Wittmer in that fatal frame, after Marion had won the game.

Reese struck out four during his turn on the slab. Wittmer fanned the same number. Marion collected one run on Marsh in the eighth inning for good measure.

McClain Helpless

McClain, the home run slugger, was helpless before Main in the game Sunday. He failed to get a hit in five trips to the plate. He received a single in Monday's clash. Stearns led the Toledo men with the stick, getting six hits out of 10 times to bat during the two-day engagement here.

Rizor snapped out of his batting slump by helping himself to four hits during the two games and Main continued his batting record by connecting for three out of eight times at bat. In the game yesterday Rowan received three bases on balls, was hit by a pitched ball, and struck out once out of five trips to the plate.

Large crowds witnessed the games each day.

P.A. says "Come again!" in every puff

THERE'S a warm invitation in every cool puff on a pipe packed with P.A., if you get what I mean. You sort of look forward to each intake, the way you watch the mails for a letter from your best girl. Good old Prince Albert! Never wears out its welcome.

Why, the instant you open the tidy red tin and get a whiff of that wonderful P.A. fragrance, your mouth waters for a taste of such tobacco. Did I say "fragrant"? I hope to tell you! The flowers that bloom in the spring have nothing on Prince Albert.

And when you load-up the old jimmy-pipe and open the drafts—say, Mister! Cool as the blast of a traffic-cop's whistle. Sweet as his words: "I didn't mean you." Mild as the Gulf Stream, yet with that full, rich tobacco body that satisfies to the very limit.

I'm getting mine with a pipe and P.A. every day. I want you to get yours. All you have to do is step around the corner and tell the man-behind-the-counter you want a tin of Prince Albert. He hears that hundreds of times a day from men like yourself. Try P.A.

P. A.'s 2oz tidy-red is only 10c; the 4oz., pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top, dated always with every bite of bite and pack conserved by the Prince Albert process.

Leo Robinson Entry From Dunkirk Wins Champion Trophy at Coon Chase

One Hundred and Fifty Dogs Take Part in Races at Marion County Fairgrounds; Merchants Give Awards to Winners

The entry of Leo Robinson, of Dunkirk, won the Shady Side Field Trial championship silver trophy cup yesterday at the Marion County Fairgrounds in one of the most successful coon chases ever held in central Ohio.

Robinson's huge red dog defeated "Bones," considered one of the fastest dogs in the game.

Two speed races and 10 other races featured the coon chase in which 150 dogs participated. There were 250 dogs on the grounds with at least 100 coons on the premises. Prizes for winners and runners-up in all events except the grand champion race were awarded by local merchants.

The first race was taken by an entry of Frank Wise, Logan, the second, Chester Gaitcher, Mt. Gilead; third, Leo Smurr, Basil, O.; fourth E. O. Schaffer, Luna. Fifth, Grover Sherman, Ostrander; sixth, Jim Garrett, Robinson O.; seventh, eighth and ninth, Leo Robinson, Dunkirk, and tenth, Charles Zimm, West Virginia.

Robinson's champion dog took the second speed race while Holmes Lango's entry from Mt. Victory, won the first speed event.

A large crowd witnessed the races held under the management and supervision of the Shady Side Field Trial.

Those in charge of the coon chase have issued a vote of thanks to all merchants and others who co-operated with them in staging the affair.

PIRATES AND BRUINS FORGE AHEAD IN RACE

Pittsburgh Trims Cardinals in Double-Header; Cubs Win

New York, July 5—Double victories by the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs well out in front in the National League race. In the American league the New York Yankees won a double header, too, and are now the head of the other clubs as to pennants, coached the pennant.

[illegible] seem to be any club in the American League at this stage to keep the hard-hitting Yankees from [illegible] 153 points ahead of the second place Washington Senators whom they defeated twice yesterday under the outlandish scores of 12 to 1 and 21 to 1. Yesterday's [illegible] Lou Gehrig, who had a tie with Babe Ruth for home runs walloped two more [illegible]. He now has made 28.

Pittsburgh in the National League [illegible] the Cardinals twice, 7 to 6 and 4 to 3, while the Chicago Cubs [illegible] the Reds, 2 to 1 and 6 to 3, failed to gain any ground [illegible] apparent that for the present [illegible] the race for first honors [illegible] between the Pirates and the Cubs. It was a tough double header [illegible] place Cardinals to drop [illegible] games to Pittsburgh [illegible] Cubs with St. Louis 55 points [illegible] the Cubs. Meadows of the Reds won his eleventh victory of the season against two defeats.

Giants Win

The New York Giants, who had been going nowhere rapidly, came to life [illegible] the Brooklyn club twice, [illegible] 9 to 1 thereby keeping in [illegible] The Giants knocked Petty [illegible] box in the first game and [illegible] a struggle of eleven innings. Petty has been a nemesis to the Giants.

The Chicago White Sox who have come back to third place, lost two games to Cleveland, strengthening the belief that earlier in the season they had been playing over their heads. Detroit and St. Louis split a double header and so did the Red Sox and the Athletics.

WILLS-RYAN TENNIS TEAM WINS DOUBLES

Tilden-Hunter Team Takes Men's Doubles at Wimbledon

Wimbledon, England, July 5. America fell heir to its third Wimbledon title today when the great California pair of Helen Wills, the singles champion, and Elizabeth Ryan, rushed through Mrs. Peacock and Miss E. L. Heine to a straight set victory in the final round. The scores were 6-3, 6-2.

The victory of the Wills-Ryan team in the women's doubles climaxed a championship in which Americans have dominated everything except the men's singles in which their superstar Bill Tilden failed to make the grade to the final round. The inimitable Helen took over two of the champion hips in singles and doubles while yesterday Tilden retrieved much of his reputation by playing dazzling tennis in teaming with Francis T. Hunter to win the men's doubles.

Miss Ryan who today collaborated in winning her ninth British doubles championship, faced the possibility of holding two titles before the close of the meeting. In company with Hunter, she will play a semi-final match in the mixed doubles today.

In brief, America had better than an even chance of achieving the pyhorrea ratio four out of five. At least in English championships.

Leader Has 28 Home Runs While Original King of Swat Totters on Throne

Private Vendetta Between Babe and Gehrig Has New York Turnstiles Worn Out; Yankees Far Ahead in League Race

NEW YORK July 5—Eilerie swam the channel and the first thing we knew the boys were swimming back and forth as a part of their Saturday night bath and mothers were doing it for the husband and kiddies. Just a few weeks ago, the lone eagle winged his way across the Atlantic to Paris. Today, the gent who doesn't do it probably would be regarded as a bum, although a thoroughly dead one. Even John McGraw is talking of making the trip next year with a party of friends; at least, they are friends now.

The force of example is the answer and it may or may not have something to do with the fact today that Lou Gehrig has jumped the field, including George Ruth alias Herman, in the home run sweepstakes. The young man got two yesterday, George got none. He banged one on Saturday, George was just as good as he was yesterday, in front and to wit, he got a total of none.

It was only a year ago that baseball men began to realize that the man they called the hardest hitter of all time had a legitimate rival, one, in fact, who hit the ball just as hard and as far when he hit it, which was altogether other at that particular time.

But Gehrig happened to get the break of a life time. Destiny had decided that Ruth and himself should be members of the same ball club and daily contact and observation had their almost inevitable effect. Gehrig had the force of Ruth's example before him at all times and being the only man in the world who could figure to profit accordingly, it wasn't altogether easy for a bright young man like Gehrig to go wrong. He hasn't.

Has Ability

He had the God given ability, he had the incentive. The rest merely was a matter of going up there at regular intervals and taking his cut at the ball.

However Gehrig had at least one factor to overcome and that was a digot complex toward inferiority in the presence of the great man of the dugout. It is not altogether certain that Gehrig has rid himself of the delusion yet. Ruth draws $70,000 a season, Gehrig $8,000, and there is nothing quite so inferior as inferior money. Probably this pretender to home run royalty thinks it is all a regrettable mistake even now.

He is quiet and subdued where Ruth is noisy, garrulous and given to a bit of mirthful swank, if you will pardon me British Gehrig really dislikes to call attention to himself, Ruth demands it as his due.

Salary Readjustment

Of course, there will be a slight readjustment of the salary defect at Gehrig wins this two man race but, even in that extremity, Ruth will continue to be Ruth. Meantime, the Yankees, so far in front of the American League pack that no one will overtake them with a night letter, are letting their break in the business office. The buttonhole makers might remain away in droves from a club that is 12½ games ahead on the fifth of July but the strictly private vendetta between George and Gehrig has the local turnstiles all worn out. The spectacle of George trying, without success at this time to keep pace with a gent who thought he was fortunate to stick with the payroll two years ago is one the customers simply refuse to muff.

Who will be in there to death and most of them hope it will be Ruth's, just for the sake of starting something. At that, they may be thinking a trifle ahead of the situation, for George is the kind of hombre who starts hitting and forgets to stop.

Situation Changes

The situation this time, however, has a different angle. In other years, the boy friend's efforts consisted of a strictly impersonal issue between himself and the record. Except in one or two seasons when suspensions beat him to it, George had no real rival to say him nay. Certainly, it never came to a question of overtaking a man with whom he had played an almost equal number of games.

The point, therefore, revolves around the question of whether Ruth has it in him to come from behind under pressure. Was or is he a front runner who needs blinders to keep him from [illegible] and, therefore, blissful, concerning the wherefores of the rest of the field? Time will answer that one.

SUMMER SERVICES AER OPENED AT GALION

Rev. W. O. Montague Delivers Forceful Message on "Dynamic Control"

Galion, July 5—Vigorously attacking modernistic tendencies of present day religion and declaring that newer creeds are wrecking the youth of today, Rev. W. O. Montague of the United Brethren church opened the season of union services, Sunday night, with a forceful message, "Dynamic Control."

A large and interested audience representing practically every protestant denomination filled the auditorium of the First Reformed Church where the service was held. Beginning his remarks with a vivid historical sketch as a basis, Rev. Montague chose to give as an appropriate Independence Day sermon, an outline of the forces that are weakening the country and illustrated various points of his talk with fitting descriptions of well known historical incidents. Likening America of the present age to the Roman empire before its fall, the speaker attempted to show the duty of the churches in exerting their influence.

As special music numbers the choir sang the usual anthem and Naomi Tracht favored with a beautiful arrangement of "Abide with Me" as a solo selection.

Various ministers of the city had charge of parts of the program with Rev. Zinn presiding. Rev. R. E. Porter gave the invocation, Rev. O. C. Kramer the prayer, Rev. Thompson the announcements and Rev. Arnold Lang read the scripture. As president of the ministerial association Rev. S. A. Stoner announced the extensive program for the remainder of the summer to be in charge of the various churches with next week's service scheduled for the First Presbyterian Church.

"I ENJOY BETTER HEALTH THAN I HAVE IN YEARS"
Another Marion Man Tells of the Great Change Konjola Has Made in Him
"I had been suffering with neuritis, besides stomach and kidney trouble, but today I enjoy better health than I have in years, and all of this great change came over me after I began taking Konjola."

MR. I. W. McCOMBS
This statement is from Mr. I. W. McCombs, 369 South Grand Ave., who is one of the latest well-known residents of this city to indorse Konjola, the celebrated new medicine which The Konjola Man is explaining in person to large crowds throughout each day at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., Marion.
"I had neuritis about 12 years," said Mr. McCombs, "and it got a bad recently that I thought I would have to give up. My shoulders and arms were a solid mass of aches and pains. My stomach trouble was the very worst kind, causing indigestion pains, gas blonting and vomiting. Owing to weak kidneys I was subject to other miseries, such as rising 4 or 5 times a night and always having sharp pains in my back.
"I treated and doctored for all of these troubles a long time, but it was in vain. I kept on suffering. Then I found this new Konjola and now everything is different. The neuritis pains have left my arms and there is not a bit of misery anywhere in my system. My stomach never gives me any trouble and I am eating more than ever. The condition of my kidneys is perfect. I don't have to get up once at night and all the aches and pains disappeared from my back.
"I am glad to have my name added to the great list of people who are praising Konjola."
The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy (Stump & Sams), 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

Yesterday was the Fourth and me 'n Freckle spent both the six-bitses my father gave us, and Younice spent her father and mother gave and our whole yard was full of and burnt firecrackers this g, and my grandfather helped m off. His pipe was good to been on, and when it was burnt Freckle took it into the house ed it for him, and after a while found out that she had folded up racker and put in it and packed nto it down on top of it, and he a the step, and then the Lost Bag had tied a pack of fire crack- what was left of Jubilee's tail was stooping over to light it when grandfather saw the string of a pack stuck out of his back pocket, and he to where it lit and the Lost Tripe went out of the yard like and I got the bunch that was 's tail.

I come out and sot on the step watched to see if she could see she could holler at us for. asked my grandfather to tell he got his flat wheel and h was heredity.

said his grandfather was going flashlight picture of General W. Chinese, and anyhow, that's my story and I'm gonna stick to it." And that was when the firecracker in his pipe blew up and he fell off the step and my aut almost laughed at him, and just then the fire bells rang and Colded's house around the corner was on fire and we all went aroud there till milking time, and then me and Jubilee and the bunch went back till bed time. But the ashes was too hot for us to rake over to look for things.

Peter's Adventures

A Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

B. Z. BEAVER MAKES HIMSELF KNOWN

The gentleman in brown looked up in surprise at the Boy as he asked the question, but Peter shook his head. "I'm afraid not, said he. "You see I'm not sure that the trap is sunk and I would not have the courage to budge it. Now don't be worried. I have an idea. I will sit all the stones I can find and sit down on upon it, and when the owner comes to get his catch he will find a big fat little rocks."

Ha! Ha!" chuckled his companion. "How clever you are, Two Legs! That is the science of it, how we Beavers we laugh when we watch the trap- "even empty handed!" then he looked at Peter slyly at the Boy.

"Beavers are very small!" said the gentleman in brown. If you can't pull up the trap, how do you expect to pull rocks down upon it? Rocks are heavy, you know!"

Peter laughed.

"I shall not try to throw them. I shall roll them," declared he. "Just you wait and see!"

Lucky for the Boy there were many stones upon the shores of the pond, and presently Peter rolled them to a spot above the trap and then sent them splashing into the water. The gentleman in brown chuckled heartily as each stone sent little ripples dancing over the smooth surface. Now and again one hit the chain and made it clank at which the fellow smiled so broadly that all his front teeth showed.

Peter resting a moment from his labors, caught one of these smiles and spoke before he thought.

"Gee Whilikens, stranger! What a sharp teeth you have! Just like a rat's!" And they are not white, either, like mine, but yellow."

"All the better to cut down trees with, my dear Two-Legs!" answered the gentleman in brown, not a bit offended. "If my teeth were white like yours they would break easily and I couldn't afford to have that happen—that is why they are covered with a hard enamel—yellow to be sure, but a great protection since I need it most!"

"And while you are about it you might as well know all there is to know about B. Z. Beaver.

"My head is round and thick, you'll notice, and as hard as nails. I can butt into things and not even get so much as a headache.

"My front legs are short—don't need them when I am in the water, but when I stand upon my hind legs and make ready to attack a tree I find I couldn't get along without them.

"I carry sticks and mud in these front paws, too, and you wouldn't believe what strength they have when I use them to pat down the mud on the dam. As for my hind legs—with them I paddle myself over the pond. I can swim as well as a fish. And my tail! Oh, my beautiful tail! Whatever could B. Z. Beaver do without his scaly protector?"

Beaver Tells the Truth About the Tail

AT this point in his story the gentleman in brown stopped talking and began to chuckle, and he chuckled so heartily that his plump body shook all over. Peter gazed at him in surprise.

"Did you tell a joke?" asked the Boy. "If you did I didn't get the point. Explain it to me, do. Was it something you said about your tail?"

"It is about my tail, all right," declared his companion. "But I am not laughing at anything I said, but at what folks think.

"I have been told that some of the Two Legs believe that just because my tail is broad and flat I use it as a trowel to smooth down the mud on the walls and roof when I build my house. Did anyone ever hear such nonsense? A trowel for a tail! Ha! Ha! Ha! But that isn't the funniest story they tell.

"Mr. Muskrat, an old friend of mine and a very great traveler, was sunning himself upon the bank one day when two small Two-Legs came along and they were talking about me.

"'Now, Mr. Muskrat is a wary old fellow and generally makes for the depths when he sniffs a Human, but when he heard them mention my name he was curious."

"'Hm,' said he to himself. 'Talking about Beaver, are they? Perhaps they mean to do him harm. It is my duty as a friend and neighbor to hear what they have to say and warn him if he is in danger. I will hide in this hole in the ground and listen. They cannot see me and I will hear all the news.'

"So listen he did, and what do you think Muskrat heard?" asked the gentleman in brown.

"Can't guess. What?" Peter was curious now.

"He heard one Two-Legs tell the other that I used my tail as a little boat in which to carry a load of stones and mud to the dam—that I loaded it as full as I could and floated it along behind me as I paddled over the pond. Tee! Hee! Ha! Ha!

"Aren't such foolish beliefs as those enough to make anybody laugh?

"To tell the truth, my tail is of wonderful help to me. With it I propel myself all over the pond, and when I stand up to strip bark from the trees I balance myself with it upon the water. And as B. Z. Beaver does so do all the Beavers."

"I am glad you told me what your tail really is for," declared the Boy when Beaver had finished. "I might have made the same mistake myself, for your tail looks as though it might be used for anything.

"You forgot to mention, though that you used it as a clapper to strike the water and call your neighbors. I saw and heard you do that my very self. But say, Mr. Beaver, why do you call yourself B. Z.? Do those letters stand for something?"

"They certainly do—for Busy," answered Beaver, tapping himself proudly upon his plump chest. "I am Busy Beaver, Esquire, Builder of Dams, Boss Carpenter, Architect and Engineer of Animal Land."

Next: "One Hour for Play."

Workers in the sugar plantations are said to show remarkable increase in their muscular development as a result of eating the sugar cane during the harvest season.

LOANS up to $500

Last Tuesday a gentleman rushed into our office saying, "If I can raise $100.00 by the last of this week to pay my back rent, the landlord will repair the house and it surely needs it. If I don't, I'm afraid we'll be asked to move. Can you loan me the money?"

At ten o'clock Thursday morning, he received the money and retained his home. At our suggestion his landlord gave the repair job to an unemployed customer of ours who started work an hour later. This is not an unusual happening—simply every-day City Loan service.

SMALL GROUP OF STOCKS FORGE AHEAD ON MARKET

Extra General Motors Dividend or Expansion of Business Expected

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks steady; industrial stocks firm; domestic bonds inactive; foreign bonds irregular; call money 4 1-2 per cent; grain fairly steady; copper irregular; oil irregular; cotton irregular; rubber steady; sugar steady; pig iron steady; foreign exchange irregular.

New York, July 5—Dominance of the bullish forces in the stock market today was most pronounced in a small number of the high-priced industrial and specialty stocks which were pushed forward aggressively with little of no relation to the balance of the speculative list or to the business and financial developments of the day.

On the whole the second half of the year gives promise of continuing the prosperous record of its recent predecessors, and, while the volume of new business in important lines is somewhat below the average, the underlying conditions in these industries is excellent, with consumption running high inventories small. On the other hand, the building industry and various phases of the textile industry have shown a tendency to continue the high rate of expansion exhibited by them over the last year or so, while automobile leaders refuse to see any possible shrinkage in the output of their plants and factories over the next year.

General Motors returned as the aggressive leader of the bullish forces today. The stock rose to 202 1-2 in heavy trading up to the noon period, at which level the volume of trading was unusually heavy. Expectations of an extra dividend declaration by the directors at their meeting next month, and of a still further expansion in the business of the company were freely expressed in the financial district. Hudson Motors accompanied the rise with a new 2-point gain, which brought the stock up to 63. The balance of the motor list was quiet.

COFFEE FUTURES

New York, July 5—The coffee futures market opened here today. Initial prices were at net gains of eight to 24 points. July opened at 12.00, up 8; September 12.10, up 12 and May 11.55, up 24.

Deadlock Reached in Geneva Parley; Conference Adjourns

INABILITY OF U.S. TO AGREE ON CRUISERS CAUSE

Delegation Told To Seek 400,000-Ton Strength with Great Britain

Geneva, July 5—A state of complete deadlock at the tri-partite naval armslimitation conference here was reached today when the naval experts' committee adjourned indefinitely its labors to permit the various delegations to seek a means of adjusting the cruiser needs of the different powers.

The deadlock resulted directly from inability of the United States to agree to Great Britain's demand for 75 cruisers totaling about 400,000 tons. It was understood here today that the United States delegation had received instructions from Washington that unless an agreement on cruiser strength could be reached, potentially on the basis of a proposal put forward by an American delegate allowing 400,000 tons of cruiser strength each for Great Britain and the United States, that it would be better to allow the cruiser question to rest in abeyance until 1931.

Treaties End in 1931

The naval limitation treaties signed at the Washington conference, which have to do with capital ships, expire in 1931 unless renewed.

The American proposition represented a compromise between the United States' first proposal of 250,000 to 300,000 cruiser tonnage each for Great Britain and the United States, and the British demand for nearly 600,000 tons. This American compromise proposition was presented at the experts' committee meeting, and almost immediately the work of the committee was adjourned without a set date for another meeting.

Delegates Confer

This action left the arms conference without a committee meeting scheduled with the members of the various delegations conferring independently within their own ranks.

Following the adjournment, the experts' committee issued a communique stating the adjournment was taken with "a view to permitting the various delegations to seek a means of adjusting the cruiser needs of the different powers."

The communique also declared an agreement had been reached respecting submarines, but later it was authoritatively learned that the agreement was only to limit submarine torpedo tubes to 21 inches size, and that no agreement had been reached on the tonnage or number of submarines to be allowed the various powers.

IMPORTANT SESSION IS SCHEDULED BY BOARD

Commissioners To Open Bids on Courthouse Remodeling; Road Hearing Planned

An unusually important session of the board of county commissioners is scheduled for Friday afternoon of this week when bids on remodeling of the common pleas court room will be opened and a hearing will take place on proposed improvement of the St. Jameson-rd in Richland Township.

Bids on the court room work will be opened at 1 o'clock and the road hearing is scheduled for 2 o'clock. Objections to estimated assessments are to be heard in connection with the road project.

Plans for the court room remodeling call for construction of a wall dividing the room into two sections, one to be used as a law library and the other for court purposes. The contract letting was set for last month but was postponed when bids received were found to be higher than the architect's estimate.

Decision of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, meeting in Cleveland, national headquarters, to separate its banking activities from the labor end of the organization along with the abolition of the offices of president, first and second vice presidents and secretary, sets up a new structure headed by the grand chief engineer. This leaves Stanley Johnston, above grand chief engineer, in charge of the brotherhood's activities. William B. Prenter, below, president, was the late Warren Stone's right hand man for 20 years and succeeded him two years ago. Young Ensign Leaps Aboard Rum Runner Seizes $500,000 Liquor Cargo, Takes Crew

NEW YORK, July 5—Ensign Charles L. Duke is in line today for the coast guard service's coveted cross as the result of his daring act in leaping aboard a speeding rum runner in the upper bay, wounding her lone crew, seized at 3:30 a.m. today, and by sheer bluff and resourcefulness towing and sailing her crew of 22 Nova Scotia fishermen.

The young ensign, a six-footer, had had only a little experience when he captured the rum runner.

He was on patrol in the harbor in the boat which is 327 feet long and operated a searchlight and a 3-inch gun. She was submerged at a dock, ready to slip out to sea under cover of darkness, on the information received by the government.

Ensign Duke climbed on board the rum runner in the darkness after the latter had refused to heave to when ordered to do so. He was challenged by a member of the crew, who fired a shot at him. The ensign was struck by a bullet which grazed his head but did not disable him. He had been trained in a class for the prevention of the enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Grounds Runner

The ensign pressed his gun against the skipper's ribs and finally swung the ship around himself by leaning hard on the wheel. She grounded on the mud of Robbins' Reef in 10 feet of water.

Ensign Duke ordered the six seamen on the bridge below decks, and sent his own men to the Statue of Liberty for help. In the meantime, the ensign had to hold a boy a crew in a distinctly ugly mood.

Four more hours passed before a guard had been stationed to watch the crew, then Ensign Duke summoned into coast guard headquarters to make his report after 24 hours' continuous and hazardous duty.

Why We Go to "Market"—

There are two ways in which the furniture merchant can buy furniture—he can buy from photographs when the factory traveling man calls on him; or, he can attend the furniture markets—the big exhibits held during July and January of each year, at Chicago and Grand Rapids.

We go to the furniture markets. We look at hundreds of lines, inspect, examine, compare construction, finish, price. We find out what is the latest—rather than depend on just what traveling salesmen tell us is the latest.

Suppose you wanted to buy a bedroom suite, for instance. Would you prefer to have us send a man to your home with photographs of a few suites? Certainly not! You would want to come to the store, see all the pieces, examine the drawers, the workmanship, the finish, compare relative values.

Here's the point: Out of 16,000 furniture dealers less than 6,000 make it a regular practice to visit the markets. We go because for the life of us we can't see how we can give our customers the assortments, the styles and the values they are entitled to, unless we do attend the markets. That's why Schaffner stocks are up-to-the-minute all the time, correct in style, correct in price.

Welcome to visit, and welcome to credit.
